Drug-abuse dragnet formed

Hunt for phoney prescriptions

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The College of Pharmacists is setting up a province-wide information network to crack down on phoney prescription passers.

The "fan-out alert system" will also advise pharmacists about drug recalls and supply them with information on persons suspected of abusing drugs obtained through legitimate prescriptions.

Police departments will have access to the information network.

College registrar Norm Thomas said in an interview Thursday the system should be in operation within two to three weeks and will link all of the 620 pharmacies in the province.

He said any pharmacist running into problems will contact the college which will decide whether the information should be circulated on a local, regional, or provincial basis.

Twenty-five pharmacies scattered throughout the province have been designated as primary receivers of warnings.

Thomas said they will alert by phone up to three pharmacies in their areas. Each of those, in turn, will alert up to three others, working down the chain until all stores have received the message.

Thomas said the system will greatly speed up the process in getting drug recall alerts to pharmacists.

He noted a recent federal government alert banning drug preparations containing metha-pyralene, blamed in the U.S. as a carcinogen, took nearly a week to reach every pharmacy.

The fan-out alert system will do the job in one hour.

Thomas said the system

Buyers besieging banks as city gold sales soar

By AB KENT

Extra staff have been called in to handle gold and silver transactions in the Victoria branch of Canada's busiest bullion bank.

Business is running two to three times its normal rate, says a spokesman at the Bank of Nova Scotia as buyers try to beat inflation by buying gold and silver coins, wafers, bars and certificates in a precious metal market where prices have rocketed since summer.

"We are all very, very busy," said main branch assistant manager Gary Lindsey, referring to the bank's Victoria branches.

Most transactions are handled directly by the main branch and most by certificates in which the actual gold or silver remains in safekeeping in the bank's Toronto vaults.

But people are also buying what coinage is available or picking up wafers and small bars they can take home or put in safe deposit boxes.

Admiral Stamp and Coin Shop, Victoria's only private bullion dealer, also is besieged with buyers and telephone inquiries and says coins are disappearing from the market.

"It's the silver coins of Canada that have dried up," an employee said.

"It's hectic," she added. "Far more buyers than sellers."

Most popular quantities purchased are the one-ounce (troy) pieces of gold, or Austrian ducats (nine to the ounce), and the 10-ounce silver bar.

At today's prices these are worth more than $400 each for gold and about $200 for silver.

Some clients are collectors or experienced in the market but others are the uninitiated who predictably buy when prices are high and sell when they are low, the coin shop said.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, named as a distributor of the recently-minted Canadian maple leaf gold coin, reports a strong demand for gold and silver coins.

Telephone inquiries are plugging the switchboard, says main branch manager Ken Travers.

He believes a shortage of the maple leaf coin has developed.

There could be temporary delays in delivery of gold and silver, but prices on a current basis can be confirmed, the coin shop said.

One popular gold medium has been the South African Kruger rand, quoted Thursday at about $405 U.S.

Silver was $18.50 U.S. per ounce, and gold was $388 U.S.

Silver's rate of price increase has outstripped gold in the past few days as more buyers compete for it.

But on the world money markets today, gold prices tumbled in London and Zurich, confounding bewildered bullion dealers who likened the unpredictable up-and-down movement of the metal to a yo-yo.

In London, gold sank $10.75 an ounce from Thursday's record close of $385.50 to open at $374.75. In Zurich, gold opened at $374.50 an ounce.

Jury awards $111,874

A 23-year-old Port Alberni millworker was awarded damages totalling $111,874 by a B.C. Supreme Court jury Thursday for loss of his right eye in a traffic accident.

The sum, set after two hours and 35 minutes deliberation, is believed to be the highest in Canada for the loss of one eye.

The bulk of the award for Carman MacLean was for general damages with most of the remainder for past loss of income.

Although the jury heard evidence that certain skilled mill jobs would not be open to MacLean because of his loss, the jury awarded no money for probable loss of future income, if any.

Carman and his brother, Robert, 21, sued Debra Andreeff, 19, and her mother, Frances, both of Port Alberni and driver and owner respectively of a car, in connection with a traffic accident on Highway 4 in the Sproat Lake area on July 10, 1977.

The Andreeffs admitted liability in the collision, leaving the jury with the sole job of setting damages.

Robert MacLean, who suffered a back injury, made an out-of-court settlement Wednesday, the third day of the trial. Details were not given to the jury.

Carman MacLean was driving and Robert was a passenger.

In addition to the jury's award, Carman MacLean will receive pre-judgment interest of 10½ per cent.

VGH fears crisis over blood supply

By AB KENT

Orders to the Red Cross to reduce its blood collections will compromise the level of hospital care, a Victoria hospital's medical director said today.

Dr. D.R. Carlow, of Victoria General Hospital, was commenting on notice given by the Red Cross that blood collections from September to December will have to be reduced by 5 to 10 per cent as a result of instructions from the council of health ministers, which represents provincial health ministries.

"It will compromise our ability to provide care and may lead to periodic crises where we have to call in local donors, which is also costly," Carlow said.

He said he understands the council came to its decision for budget reasons which are not clearly related to an analysis of needs.

Carlow said there seems to be an assumption that whole blood is being used inappropriately or unnecessarily.

Carlow said the order will reduce the availability of blood to hospitals.

As far as elective surgery is concerned there may have to be limitations.

Dr. T.D. Stout, provincial medical director for the Red Cross, said there will be blood shortages in hospitals.

He urged hospitals to review their blood transfusion practices to reduce consumption.

"There will not be enough blood to serve new or expanded surgical or medical programs requiring blood transfusions," Stout said.

At Royal Jubilee, medical director Dr. J.R. Le Huquet said the hospital has joined other hospitals and the Canadian Medical Association in asking the ministers to explain the order.

RJH has also written Health Minister Bob McClelland expressing grave concern and asked him to do his part in having the council's decision reversed.

Blood is already in short supply, Le Huquet said, particularly at Christmas time, and there have been recent shortages.

Without a local supply, Victoria hospitals rely on Vancouver for blood and the Red Cross move now further reduces their flexibility as local care centres.

Le Huquet said it will have an effect on the hospital's ability to serve Victoria and present a key difficulty for the open heart surgery program.

Without the assurance of adequate blood supplies, heart surgery and some other surgical procedures cannot be conducted, he said.

Home care section today

Homes Today, a new section of the Victoria Times, makes its debut in this issue and will be a regular Friday feature.

The new section brings readers a lot of information on home care and repair, decorating, hobby projects, the Home of the Week plan, the John Hearn Collectibles column as well as feature stories on local homes. And this is complemented by up-to-date listings of homes for sale through advertisements from Victoria's leading realtors.

Inside Homes Today readers will find TV Weekly, a complete guide to television for the coming week, including a handy grid-style listing for each day's prime time viewing. Other features formerly found in the Prevue section have been moved elsewhere in the paper. The popular Soap Opera Scene column will be a regular feature of the lifestyles section on Fridays and today is found on page 40. The Prevue Payoff Puzzle will continue as a Friday feature and today is on page 44. And the book review page will now be in Saturday's Times.

We believe readers will enjoy Homes Today and the compact TV Weekly. If you have any comments or suggestions on improving the content, please send them in writing to New Sections Editor, c/o Victoria Times. Phoned in suggestions cannot be accepted.

Salisbury accepts

LONDON (Reuter) — The Zimbabwe-Rhodesian government announced today it had accepted British proposals for a new majority-rule constitution that would strip the country's white minority of its powers to veto change. (See earlier story on page 48.)

Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa announced the decision and demanded the British government immediately lift trade sanctions against his country and grant the former British colony legal independence.

The British and the Salisbury government's rival for power, the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, have insisted that a full settlement will depend not only on a constitution but on arrangements leading to legal independence.

Nurses seek 29% raise

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's 12,500 registered nurses want an immediate 29-per-cent increase from hospitals when their current contract expires Jan. 1 and will use every available means to get it, their negotiators said Thursday.

Nora Paton, a labor relations officer for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., would not say what kind of job action is being contemplated. She also would not divulge the length of the agreement sought by the association.

She told a news conference that a two-day meeting of nurses decided to seek an immediate lump sum catch-up payment amounting to 11 per cent and an increase of 18 per cent.

Under the proposal, monthly pay for a beginning nurse would increase to $1,450 from $1,305 under the lump-sum payment and to $1,711 with the general increase. The lump sum would increase according to the expertise and responsibility of higher categories.

Ms. Paton and Malcolm Wilkinson, the association's senior labor relations officer, said B.C. nurses are angry over a 7.2-per-cent loss in purchasing power since 1975 and their education and responsibilities are not recognized.

The negotiators said that 10 years ago, registered nurses were paid 34 per cent more than practical nurses represented by the Hospital Employees Union. Today, the gap is 15 per cent although the registered nurse continues to supervise the practical nurse.

They said the poor pay has resulted in a shortage of nurses in B.C. and the 113 hospitals involved in bargaining with the nurses through the Health Labor Relations Association can not afford to provide poor care to the public.

Part of the answer, they said, is for the government to provide more money for health care.

Poll asks for roll call on absentee teachers

The education ministry is conducting a province-wide survey on absenteeism of school teachers.

John Walsh, program superintendent for the education ministry, said Thursday all school districts are being asked for detailed information on how many teachers take time off, when and why.

"There is no specific purpose," Walsh said of the survey. "That's not the only thing, we survey dozens and dozens of things all the time. This office has surveyed the number of dropouts — all kinds of things."

The ministry says it wants the information because of "considerable public interest and concern about school district practices with regard to the high rate of teacher absenteeism due to sickness."

Walsh said the survey is due in mid-October.

Al Blakey, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, reacted angrily to the announcement Thursday, saying the survey is part of a continuing attack on the profession by Education Minister Pat McGeer.

"There is no considerable public interest and concern and teacher's use of sick leave is not high," said Blakey in a news release from Vancouver.

"This is just another example of the minister looking for ways to snipe at the teaching profession," said Blakey.

He added the survey is unnecessary because the information is already available in a study carried out last year by the federation and the B.C. Association of School Trustees.

"If Dr. McGeer has some concern about teacher absences, why doesn't he discuss it with us?"

Phoney prescription hunt

will warn pharmacists of persons passing forged prescriptions and will be helpful in detecting cases of double-doctoring — where drug abusers receive prescriptions from two or more unsuspecting doctors.

The information will be supplied by both the pharmacists and police.

He said pharmacists will be advised of the drug sought, a description of the passers and the names of the doctors allegedly prescribing the drugs.

While a circular outlining the alert system, sent to pharmacists this week, says nothing about the police involvement, Thomas said police have been invited to use the information.

Staff Sgt. Bob Hawkes, head of the RCMP drug squad in Victoria welcomed the move.

"It's given us another arm to monitor the situation," he said.

Thomas recognized the wide dissemination of information, particularly in cases where a person has obtained a legitimate prescription from a doctor, could be seen as a possible breach of confidentiality between patient and doctor.

He said, however, legal advisers to the college feel there will be no breach if the information is circulated among pharmacists on a strictly professional basis.

Thomas said the college hadn't considered the possible conflict that may arise through police participation in the system, but recognized there could be a problem.

A local pharmacist, who asked not to be named, said it is difficult if not impossible to reconcile releasing information about patients with the ethical standards of the profession.

She said there has been considerable discussion on the human rights aspect of police supplying pharmacists with information about drug users, but no thought had been given to the repercussions of pharmacists supplying similar information to police.

Frank Archer, executive director of the B.C. Pharmacists Society, says he feels it is fine for police to give pharmacists information but not the other way around.

However, pharmacists are concerned about the growing problem of prescription drug abuse and feel somewhat drastic action has to be taken to stamp it out.

Archer noted that at present there are virtually no controls over dispensing drugs, other than for drugs on the narcotic control list which can only be dispensed by written prescription from a doctor.

Such drugs include demarol, dilaudid, and methadone.

All other prescription drugs, including tranquilizers like valium and narcotic hydrocodones such as are found in a variety of cough syrups, may be telephoned in to the pharmacist by the doctor.

Archer said that while doctors are supposed to phone in the prescriptions themselves, there are cases of nurses or receptionists doing it, despite the practice being a violation of the standards sets by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

He said phone-in prescriptions invite abuse but pharmacists are being warned to double-check to prevent impersonations.

He said the society has considered a move requiring doctors to write out all prescription, as is done in England, but vetoed the suggestion feeling it would prove too costly and too incovenient for the patients.

Beatles reunion proposed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — An official U.N. spokesman said the possibility of a benefit concert by the Beatles to collect funds for Indochina refugees was being considered, but the rock group so far had not agreed to it.

He said the Beatles "are interested in considering it."

The spokesman, Rudolf Stajduhar, said U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim "is in touch with George Harrison," one of the members of the group, "to discuss the possibilities."

The U.N. spokesman said a benefit for the U.N. Children's Fund last January netted $4 million and it was felt it would be a good idea to explore the possibility of a similar concert or the refugees.

The law firm representing Paul McCartney earlier denied reports that the Beatles are to be reunited for a boat-people benefit concert this fall.

Ferry hull scraped by 'object'

Divers examining the hull of the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria discovered a paint scrape three feet wide and 35 feet long.

The examination Thursday followed an incident which occurred in thick fog earlier in the day as the ferry left Swartz Bay for the mainland and entered Knapp Passage.

"A noise was heard as though the vessel had touched an object," a ferry spokesman said.

"Engineers aboard the ferry made a check of the ferry interior, but found no evidence of damage to the hull."

The spokesman said the paint scrape to the outside hull was discovered later when divers made an underwater examination.

There was no other damage and the ferry resumed its sailing schedule.

Electricians back on job

City electrical workers were back on the job today after a four-day wave of picketing which disrupted a number of municipal services including work at city hall.

The 15 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have been using flying picket squads to periodically close down the city's public works, parks and maintenance operations.

On Wednesday, city hall was picketed and Thursday the electrical workers hit the police station and the city's five parkades.

The electrical workers have been without a contract since Jan. 1 and are seeking a number of improvements in working conditions, such as hours of work and holidays as well as immediate parity with their Hydro counterparts.

Under the current system, the city electricians get what Hydro workers receive but nine months later.

Closer checks follow crash

Transport ministry officials are doing closer checks of Pacific Coastal Airlines' pilots flying under visual flight rules following Tuesday's fatal crash, says a ministry spokesman.

Steve Rybak said a routine audit of operations last week showed some pilots had not taken necessary courses and found minor equipment discrepancies in some of the aircraft.

The Nanaimo-based airline and the ministry have decided to extend the audit and government officials will fly the carrier's routes as part of the check, he said.

Rybak said the airline's visual flight rule aircraft were not grounded as suggested in some reports.

"There is nothing wrong with the machines," he said.

Four men were killed and five injured Tuesday when a Britten Norman Islander aircraft owned by Pacific Coastal smashed into a fog-shrouded mountainside on northern Vancouver Island.

The plane was equipped only for visual flight rule flying.

The airline owns another Islander, two DC-3s which use instruments and a smaller craft which uses visual flight rules.

A Pacific Coastal spokesman said no disruptions in its flights are expected today.

Operations Manager Bob Pridmore said the pilot of the plane that went down Tuesday had come through with "flying colors" last week in his tests. Ray Crandall was among those killed.

The crash was the second for the airline this year. Six people were killed in a twin-engined aircraft at Nanaimo's Cassidy airport April 19.

Doukhobors convicted of arson try

NELSON (CP) — Seven Sons of Freedom Doukhobors were found guilty in county court here Thursday of one charge each of attempted arson.

Sentence will be handed down Oct. 19.

The verdict by Judge Kenneth Houghton came after 1 1/2 days of testimony. Throughout the trial, the defendants sat naked and sang Russian hymns before each court session.

Court was told that on May 13 the seven came to the home of South Slocan resident and Orthodox Doukhobor Joe Podovinikoff. Gasoline was spilled on the house and matches were lit, witnesses said.

Tina Zmaeff, 54, Nellie Koodrin, 57, Helen Kinakin, 44, Molly Stoochnoff, 49, Alex Legebokoff, 65, Fred Hadikin, 63 and his wife Pauline Hadikin, 64, all of the Nelson area, were remanded to the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre in Burnaby.

The convictions came five days after a jury acquitted Orthodox Doukhobor leader John J. Verigin of charges of conspiring to commit arson.

B.C. ferry pact close

Sources close to the talks involving 2,700 B.C. ferry workers say both sides have moved closer to a settlement.

Clive McKee, an industrial inquiry commissioner, held a meeting with the parties today before writing his report which is expected to go to Labor Minister Allan Williams on Monday, the sources said.

The report will not be binding on the parties.

One report said the status of casual employees has been settled and the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union presented a modified wage proposal of nine per cent in each year of a two-year contract.

The ferry workers are in a legal strike position but have stayed on the job since walkouts Sept. 6 at Horseshoe Bay, Departure Bay and Langdale terminals.

Soliciting decision 'landmark'

VANCOUVER (UPC) — A 21-year-old Vancouver woman was convicted of persistent soliciting and fined $400 Thursday in what Crown prosecutor Jim Jardine called a landmark decision.

Karen E. Glajot was one of about 30 persons charged his spring in a police crackdown on prostitution. She was charged May 21 after soliciting a number of men, ncluding an undercover policeman.

Judge W.G. Craig fined Glajot $400 or, in default, 10 days in jail. She has until Nov. 1 to pay the fine.

Glajot's case was the first n which a prostitute has been convicted for "persisent" conduct.

Forest fire damage falls

VANCOUVER (CP) — There have been 3,519 forest ires in British Columbia to date in 1979 compared with ,002 for the same period in he record year of 1970, provincial fire suppression manager H. G. Doerksen aid Thursday.

But the total acreage burned this year is less than 0 per cent of the 1970 figure. In 1979, 50,000 acres have been burned compared with 60,000 acres nine years ago.

No limit set on budgets

RICHMOND (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Thursday it is not likely the provincial government will mpose budget limits on ocal governments this year.

Vander Zalm said the five-per-cent limit imposed on municipal budgets last year was actually voluntary, although municipalities may have believed the government would follow up with egislation enforcing the imit if they had not agreed o abide by it.

Best to resign

It probably isn't fair to blame all the troubles of the Royal Jubilee Hospital on board chairman Terry Prentice.

The provincial government should take a share of the blame because of its constantly changing policies on health spending and budgets. In the past nine months Health Minister Bob McClelland has gone, in three or four steps, from a policy of a five per cent limit on spending increases and no extra money for deficits to a policy of a 7.5 per cent limit on increases and full provincial payment of old deficits.

The rest of the board should also share the flak that is coming down from the hospital's doctors. They have been a full part of decisions to hold down spending, to close beds during the summer nursing shortage, and to hire a new executive director with little consultation with medical personnel.

Prentice, however, is front and centre in the dispute and has become, to the doctors, a symbol of all that is wrong with the hospital. To a significant degree, that is his own fault. He has been dreadfully undiplomatic, blaming the Jubilee's doctors for unnecessary surgery and treatment (never borne out by any facts) and suggesting that the only solution to the hospital's difficulties is for people to stop getting sick.

His position isn't enhanced in the slightest by recent defences of him by Esquimalt Ald. Larry Mann in which Mann has repeated the charges of extravagance against the doctors.

This summer the hospital seemed in danger of blowing sky-high with charges, countercharges and disputes coming into the public eye each day. In the last few weeks the situation seemed to have quietened down somewhat.

The doctor's motion of non-confidence in Prentice, however, shows that nothing has really improved. It is doubtful whether the best possible standards of medical care can be achieved in such an atmosphere of confrontation. Doctors cannot be expected to perform their best in a hospital where they have lost their confidence in the administration.

The situation may not have been all Prentice's fault, but for the good of the institution, it would probably be better that he resign and let someone else try to sort out the mess.

If he will not, McClelland may have to step in to ensure that the administrative and political problems do not impair the Royal Jubilee's ability to provide first-rate care to its patients.

Hit list mania

The Clark government has botched the firing of Bryce Mackasey.

Surely Transport Minister Don Mazankowski must have known he would have to give a reason for the dismissal of Mackasey as the chairman of Air Canada.

It has been common knowledge for weeks that the Clark cabinet has been under pressure from its caucus and party insiders to shed some Liberal blood. But to fire the chairman of a crown corporation who has six years remaining in a contract at an annual salary of $90,000 for the sake of political revenge could cost the taxpayers a bundle.

Mazankowsi's office won't comment on the reason Mackasey was shown the door. Presumably they are not willing to counter Mackasey's contention that he was doing a good job and had a satisfactory relationship with the airline's board of directors.

The government has landed itself in a triple-bind. If the public is told Mackasey was fired because he lacked the necessary talent, Mackasey will sue. Trials are always messy, and if the government loses, damages awarded could be substantial.

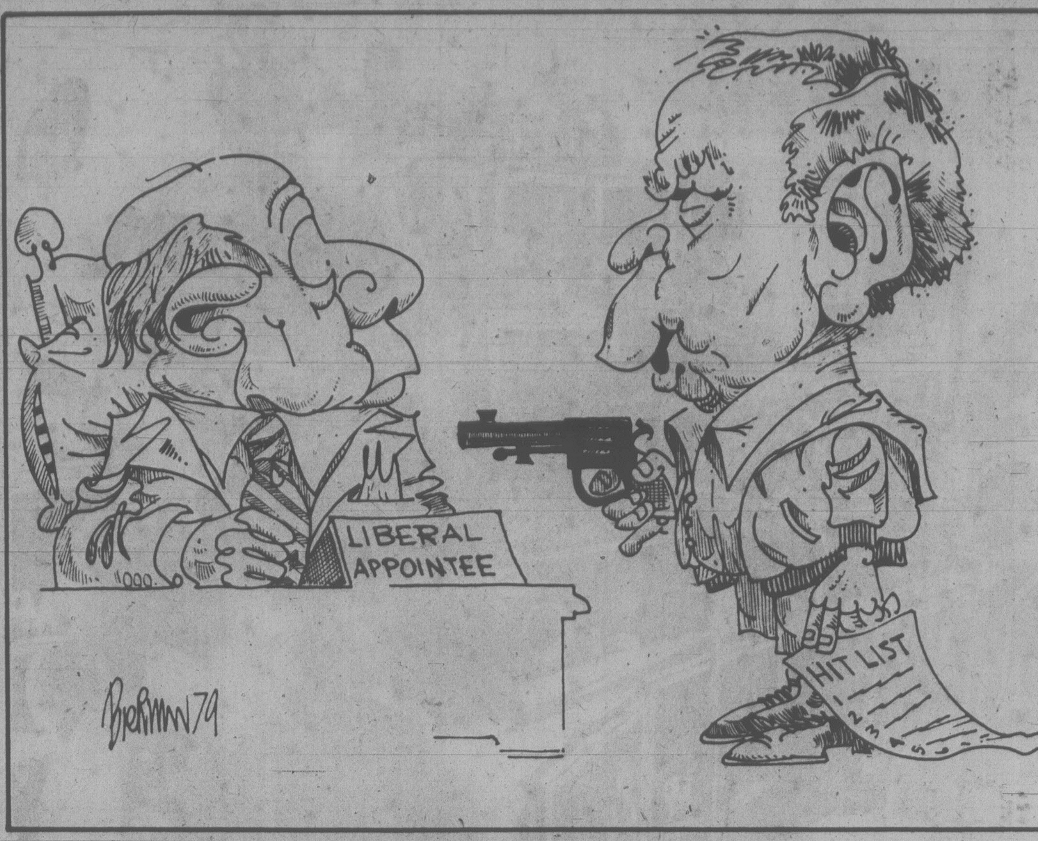
On the other hand, Mazankowski could tough it out and not say anything. But, if Mackasey was let go simply because he was a prominent Liberal, the government will have make a substantial cash settlement with him, or he will go to court to force the government to honor the contract. Current legal wisdom indicates that a settlement in the order of $500,000 would buy him off.

It's doubtful that when the party members were screaming for Liberal heads, they wanted to spend half a million dollars to shed one body.

Mackasey might well have been expected to tuck his tail between his legs and go home. But in light of the possible financial reward and the embarrassment it has created the Torys, why bother.

The third and perhaps the most significant ramification is reducing the jobs of senior executives in crown corporations to the color of their political shirt. Frankly, who'd want the job if tenure was guaranteed only to the next general election?

The Clark government government could just as easily have broken a despicable Liberal tradition. Falling to the temptation of revenge just wasn't worth it.



"... I'd like to use your head ... over my fireplace."

Frankenstein says

John Fryer's letter to the editor of Sept. 10 (Poor planning), used an example of recent space planning done by the B.C. Buildings Corporation to illustrate how the corporation's accommodation standards as applied to office layouts, are costly to the "taxpayer in terms of employee efficiency and morale." He specifically referred to that portion of the standards which calls for minimal numbers of offices on window walls. Mr. Fryer went on to liken the British Columbia Buildings Corportion to a government-created "Frankenstein".

The facts with respect to our application of accommodation standards to the provision of office for ministry clients speak for themselves. For the first time in B.C., the "Frankenstein" Mr. Fryer refers to has developed, and applies as best it can, comprehensive accommodation standards in satisfying government space requirements. These standards were developed with significant research effort and with much client involvement.

As our most recent annual report states, the application of office accommodation standards during 1978 alone, resulted directly in space cost savings exceeding $1 million compared to previous practices.

The standards do tend to restrict severely the availability of offices to only those whose function requires them, regardless of status, and they do require offices to be on inner walls rather than window walls, unless programmatic considerations make such location impractical. The emphasis is to provide as much window space, and hence natural light as possible, to the many employees not enjoying private offices.

From the details of the example Mr. Fryer used, it appears that he is referring to a newly relocated office of some 15 persons.

Six of the 15 staff are allowed private offices in accordance with standards, with the other nine being in an open landscape environment. The main problem with the office plan which was proposed by the staff was that it did not allow all of those without offices to have good access to natural light.

The corporation insisted on approved standards being followed in the new location, and the corporation's plan as agreed to by the ministry was not the plan all employees would themselves have most preferred. But it was well thought out, the premises were examined by our standards people and the objections thoroughly discussed with the ministry prior to finalization.

The fact is that there is far more logic and fairness now being applied to the allocation of space among government employees than ever before. If Mr. Fryer is interested in a real insight into what the corporation is doing in this or any other area, all he need do is give us a call. We welcome open and constructive questioning by a union leader or by anyone else for that matter, as long as some effort at fairness of presentation is attempted. In this instance, I believe Mr. Fryer failed to provide a fair presentation of the total facts. — Peter Dolezal, Vice-President, Corporate Services, British Columbia Building Corporation.

Scope too limited

I appreciated the article that dealt with street kids, in that it told of the lack of resources which are available to troubled kids in Victoria. But I do not appreciate the implications it (and subsequent letters to the editor) presented — namely that: a) most street kids are products of "broken homes", and b) that the solution to the problem of street kids would be for all mothers to leave paid employment and return to the home full-time.

I am a mother who is fortunate enough to be employed full-time. My two sons, aged five and eight are "products of a broken home". What hope is there for these little ones? Although I generally consider myself to be doing a good job of parenting, guilt and fear of the future lie even heavier on my shoulders after reading this series of articles.

Are my sons necessarily worse off than children who come from two-parent homes in which one parent is an alcoholic; or in which the father, a busy executive or politician, rarely spends time with his children; or where both parents are too busy with their own concerns to care enough about their kids? Or how about the home where the older kids are given "everything" including car keys and alcohol? What about the family in which the mother does stay home full-time but the father moonlights to make ends meet? Or the family in which the father spends all his free time in front of the TV and only communicates with his children by ignoring them, shouting at them or belittling them. These are just a few examples of two parent homes that might breed "street kids".

Just having two parents home full-time does not guarantee that a child will receive adequate affection, respect and time from these parents.

Parenting is a most difficult job for anyone — please don't add to our task by condemning us outright just because we are single and/or employed mothers. There are plenty of studies around that demonstrate that our children, too, can grow up to become independent, happy and noble human beings. — L. Shields, Victoria.

Both get full marks

Before the "Ask the Times" statement that the first practical electric lamp was invented by Sir Joseph Wilson Swan, (he exhibited his lamp in Newcastle, England, 10 months before Edison's epochal announcement), starts a heated international debate, honor should be awarded to both inventors.

Up to 50 years before their time, inventors had raised filaments to incandescence in evacuated bulbs in an endeavor to provide light, but all these attempts failed because the bulbs blackened inside immediately. What both Swan and Edison realized, apparently independently, was that the evacuation and incandescence of the bulb and filament must proceed simultaneously. This was the secret to success.

However, as everyone knows there is a difference between practicality and commerciability, and in this respect Edison was superior. At that time the whole world was discussing the problem of "subdividing the electric light", already available for outdoor use in huge arc lamps, into small enough units for home use.

Swan's bulb was like an elongated egg in shape, and a kind of table lamp, with bare terminals at top and bottom of the "egg" powered by a low voltage battery. This was certainly not suitable for home lighting.

Edison and his staff were thinking in terms of a complete commercial unit from the generating station, the controlling switches, cables, house wiring and lighting units, for which a "high" voltage, (120 volts) was required, and his genuius provided all these in a form still recognizable today. That, and the research laboratory idea where numbers of scientists and engineers could work together, were his great contributions to the world.

Sir Joseph was a chemist, the discoverer of synthetic dyes derived from coal tar, which, neglected in England, were taken up by the Germans and formed the foundation of their vast chemical supremacy, which so nearly led to their victory in the First World War.

Sir Joseph might also be said to have originated the synthetic fabrics industry: from the cellulose filaments he was experimenting with for his lamp, he had table mats woven for the curiosity of his friends.

Those who believe in ESP will find that almost all great ideas have evolved simultaneously in far distant places, giving rise to violent nationalistic claims as to who was "first". — J. P. Thornton, 945 Wilmer Street.

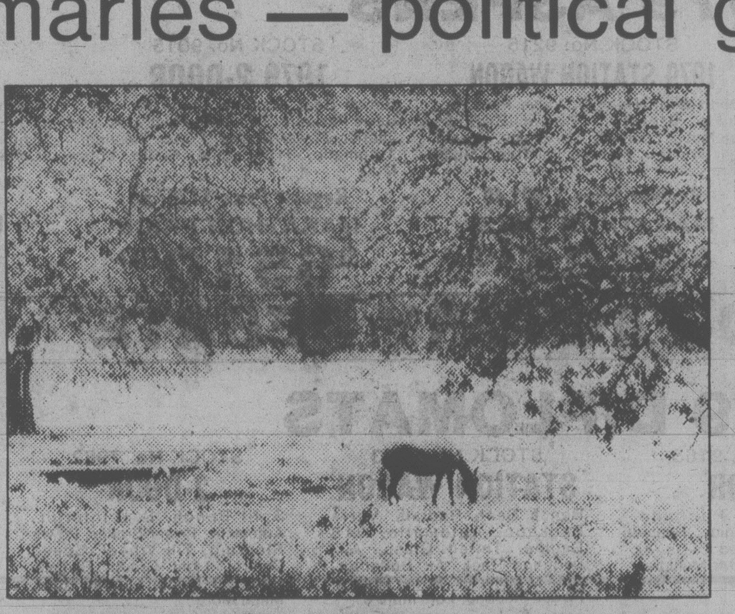
U.S. Primaries — political giantism

WASHINGTON — Sometime next spring, Americans viewing the political landscape may recall those recent news photos of an ashen, rubberlegged Jimmy Carter on the edge of collapse in a 10-kilometre race.

That portrait of a runner is a perfect metaphor for what a clutch of political hopefuls will have to face in the upcoming marathon to end all marathons — the U.S. presidential primaries.

Choosing two candidates for a general election in the United States is an inhuman process — a huffing, puffing foot-race that starts in New Hampshire and traverses thousands of miles through three dozen states, along a track littered with casualties and hokum and huge campaign bills.



Sparsely populated New Hampshire key state in primaries.

Travelling circus

Some see it as a travelling circus; others, like columnist James Reston, a "GOOFY BUT GLORIOUS" time when American politics goes on the road to renew itself.

At the finish line next June, the two survivors — a Democrat and a Republican — will have but a scant moment's rest before slogging into a national campaign.

The U.S. primary system has no parallels anywhere. It is political giantism at its worst. In Canada, by comparison, a national campaign seems like a casual jog through the park.

And it's becoming more and more intense. In 1968, 17 states had presidential primaries. In 1976, there were 30. Next year, there will be 35. Extrapolate into the future, and the president of the U.S. might well be the candidate who doesn't drop dead of cardiac arrest before election day in November.

With costly TV time and the advent of big-budget marketing, polling and public relations, the primaries are becoming hopelessly expensive. In 1976, the 23 candidates for president spent a total of $113 million on the primary circuit.

And they are only one component, albeit the biggest one, in the presidential selection process. There are state caucuses, state conventions and for the first time this year, something called a "pre-primary preference poll" organized by Florida Republicans.

One of the most polite criticisms of primaries comes from Morris Udall, a Liberal victim in 1976, who called them "messy."

Other critics see them as a media fantasy, a monstrous beauty contest, an aberration and a distortion of democracy.

Yet the primary system has developed a life of its own and, with occasional changes and reforms from year to year, it seems here to stay.

It is the political equivalent of a rite of manhood. Candidates are required to endure what must seem an endless series of personality contests, always with one eye on the polls and the other on the press.

The process guarantees surprises. In 1976 Jimmy Carter was considered a rank outsider among Democrats until he won the support of Iowa party members in January.

Then, methodically building up a head of steam, he galloped through New Hampshire and headed south, collecting delegates as he went. His trademarks were devotion to detail, a low-key manner behind the famous smile, and an obsessive attention to the polls. (Many of the qualities, ironically, that he is being criticized for today).

By the time he reached the Democratic convention in New York, the opposition had evaporated and his candidacy was rubber-stamped.

On the road to the primary season, some presidential aspirants are developing their unique strategies. Sen. Edward Kennedy, for example, subtly encourages "write-in" (or passive) campaigns in more than 20 states. On the other side of the continent, Ronald Reagan, the Republican front-runner, also lies low.

Both are apparently waiting for President Carter's declining fortunes to "bottom out" before jumping into the fray. That way, their candidacies will appear more attractive.

Carter's people seem eager for the battle to be joined. "A national campaign," a Carter aide recently told Newsweek magazine, "is a series of arduous, nasty and very messy little contests in different states, and we understand that process."

The primaries give political credence to the dictum that "the meek shall inherit the earth." New Hampshire, one of the 10 least-populated states in the union, plays a kingmaker role in a presidential year because it hosts the first primary.

It jealously protects this status. When the Democratic party considered juggling the order of its 1980 primaries, the roar from the tiny state echoed across the land.

Thus, the national media has been showering attention on picnics and rallies and the man-on-the-street in towns like Nashua and Concord where, we are told, the seeds of the 1980 presidency will be sown.

California Gov. Jerry Brown, among others, has travelled 3,000 miles to bring his message of a balanced budget and solar energy to the granite state. Brown hopes to launch his "underdog" campaign there.

In November, 4.5 million households in New England will be receiving a gift from the White House — a plastic bag containing 11 tips for conserving heating oil this winter and a shower head device to save hot water.

Those who claim that the primary system is unfair often point to New Hampshire. Carter was credited with a "stunning" victory there in 1976, a victory that helped propel him into the White House.

But his primary win came with only seven per cent of the voters who cast ballots in the general election months later. "The results of New Hampshire will be disproportionately reported," complain the Carter people this year, but it was a blessing three years ago.

Until the 1960s, presidential candidates were indirectly chosen by the professional politicians in those cliched "smoke-filled rooms" across the country.

Voting instructions

They hand-picked the delegates from their states who journeyed to their national conventions, with instructions in the pockets of their seersucker suits on whom to vote for.

But then, in the name of democratic reforms, the "pros" were swept aside and the selection process fell into the hands of average citizens. The closed caucuses gave way to the primaries, where everyone's vote was equal.

The reformers are beginning to have second thoughts. For one thing, the voting turnout in primaries is now so low that the results no longer seem representative. Special-interest groups have elbowed their way in.

As one savvy Washington observer put it: "The selection process has been transferred from one elite . . . to another."

This was the signal for little-known outsiders, like Jimmy Carter, to exploit the new order with jazzy and sophisticated primary campaigns directed at the average voter.

Carter's performance as president, ironically, has given the process a bad name.

STAN STEINER

(Steiner has written books on American Indians and Chicanos. His latest is In Search of the Jaguar: The Paradox of Growth in Venezuala. He wrote this article for The Washington Post)

Venezuela oil wells . . . the idea was conservation

CARACAS—On a pedestal in his garden of tropical flowers, entwined with vines and gorgeous Venezuelan orchids, sits his Singer Sportscoupe, the 1936 model. It is a symbol, this automobile reduced to a nostalgic artifact in the exotic garden of don Juan Pablo Perez Alfonso on the outskirts of Caracas; for this man, who was called "the chief architect of OPEC" by Anthony Sampson in The Seven Sisters, believed the car was a "cosmic curse" and ought to be replaced by bicycles, as electricity ought to be replaced by candles, and petroleum by wood.

"The Man Who Invented OPEC," as he was known to his colleagues, told me with a twinkle in his eye that he conceived of it as an environmental organization. He believed the industrial nations of the West were destroying the energy resources of the earth by their wasteful consumption. And the only way to stop them was to raise oil prices so high that they would be forced to limit oil imports and conserve.

"OPEC, as I have conceived it, is the leading ecology group in the world," said Perez Alfonso, who died of cancer in a Washington hospital on Labor Day.

Don Juan Pablo wrote the original "Gentleman's Agreement" upon which OPEC was based. For 20 years he guided the growth of what he called "my little idea that has changed the history of the world."

"Now the world is paying the real price of oil," he said. "It is the price of history."

Back in the late 1940s it was Perez Alfonso who convinced the Iranians, under Permier Mohammed Mossedegh, to nationalize their oil fields. It was, he came to believe, a premature and ill-advised move, and he felt responsible to some degree for the shah's returning to power with the aid of the CIA. "I made a mistake," he said simply.

Nonetheless, he continued to feel that if the Iranians had been successful and if he could have organized OPEC back in the 1940s, the world energy crisis might have been avoided. "Even then," he said, "we were beginning to think of the need for controlling the use of our natural resources. Not having been able to establish OPEC in the 1940s, but having to wait for the 1960s, has damaged the future of the whole world."

The opportunity did come to him in the summer of 1960. When the Russians began flooding the world oil market with their then abundant supplies, they forced oil prices down. Exxon, as leader of the multinational oil companies, countered by lowering its prices. And in the fall of oil royalties that followed, the Middle Eastern countries faced a revenue loss of $132 million; they were ready to listen to don Juan Pablo.

Meeting in Egypt that year, leaders of the oil-producing countries agreed to the Venezuelan's proposal that they form "an exclusive club." As a Kuwaiti official later said: "OPEC couldn't have happened without the oil cartel. We just took a leaf from the oil companies' book."

In gathering signatures for his OPEC proposal, don Juan Pablo was as impish as ever. He told the Iranian representative, "Sign it! Nobody is going to read it!"

Almost 20 years later, asked whether he still thought OPEC was an ecology organization, don Juan Pablo voiced mixed feelings. "Now (that) role of OPEC has really disappeared," he said. "Still, I feel OPEC is a good instrument for the Third World. It just has not been used properly."

Born at the turn of the century, he embodied in his life the contradictory ideas of our time. He helped to create the very world of oil riches that he later rejected.

In the democratic revolution in Venezuela, he and his friend Romulo Betancourt helped establish one of the longest-lasting democracies in Latin America. He became minister of mines and hydrocarbons, the position from which he formulated his proposal to nationalize the country's oil fields and refineries, and to found OPEC.

A gnome-like little man, as bald as a baby, he retired from what he called "the jungle" of international oil politics to quietly tend his garden. "So, you see, I am an ecologist, first of all. Always I have been an ecologist, first of all. Now I am not interested in oil. I live for my flowers."

In the small mansion that he built with his own hands, he lived as simply as he could. Though he was many times a millionaire, his lifestyle was Spartan. He read by candlelight. And when visitors came to seek his counsel, notables from around the world, he politely asked them to leave by sunset so that he would not waste electricity.

Nor would he drive a car. When the parliament of Venezuela wished to honor him as "The Father of Oil Nationalization," he refused to go to downtown Caracas. They'd have to come to him, he said. And so the parliament came to his garden.

"Isn't that a strange philosophy for the man who founded OPEC?" I asked him one day. "Why, if you feel that way, did you found OPEC?"

"Maybe we will (be forced by OPEC) to start over again, with bicycles," he laughed. "As I see it, we in the Third World may stop the wastage of our energy resources. That's how I envisioned OPEC when I thought of it, back in 1946. Most people see OPEC as a way to raise oil prices, but I see it as a way to lower the use of energy."

The idea of OPEC as the promoter of bicycles seemed an unlikely image then. But don Juan Pablo was merely ahead of his time.

Russell Baker

In America at this time chic people pay through the nose to stuff their nostrils with cocaine, which was the chic narcotic of the roaring Twenties.

The universal music is disco, which is chloroform in a 12-inch disk. The characteristic pastime is jogging, which consists in running around in circles to get to a shower stall.

Americans meditate, sit naked together in hot baths, take their own blood pressures with do-it-yourself blood-pressure kits and take years off their appearance by daily applications of cream to graying hair and occasional surgery on eyes, chins and buttocks.

They are passionate about few things except gasoline. For gasoline, they will kill. For gasoline, strong men will beat up a pregnant woman.

The most popular themes in their literature deal with the science of fornication, the preparation of food, the care and maintenance of their internal organs and the plights of young women of the 18th and 19th century during encounters with arrogant males and large sinister houses.

Their favorite movies depict the consumption of human beings by monstrous beasts, both real and imaginary; the destruction of planets, and the use of weaponry, both ancient and futuristic, to eradicate supporting actors.

Curiously, however, it is not monstrous beast, planetary destruction or lethal laser beam that haunts their nightmares. The horror they dare not contemplate is the hospital, for few who enter there return until bankroll, trust fund, home, car and the future of children have been forfeited to experience the miracle of modern American medicine.

Minute by minute, hour by hour, day after day, these wretched people are taunted by radio, television and print with the promise of arthritis, diabetes, cancer, stroke, coronary thrombosis, emphysema, rabies, cholera, insanity, blindness, alcoholism, nephritis, ileitis, progressive warts, cirrhosis of the liver, cloven hoof, trichinosis and brain tumor.

This constant torment is justified by the authorities on ground that people have a right to know that the hospital will get them if they don't watch out. This has led to an odd conviction among Americans that people would not get sick if they paid attention to the warnings and, so, when Americans do get sick they feel doubly rotten because everybody treats them as if they had only themselves to blame.

Americans love to buy things. It keeps their minds off the hospital. It is also a good way of getting rid of any money they might have inflicted on them. They buy burgers mostly, but also a lot of chicken and doughnuts. They also find it hard to resist aspirin tablets, automobiles, witty T-shirts, The National Enquirer and guns.

Americans shoot each other a lot. This not peculiar to the late 1970s, of course, but as with everything else, they do it th less gusto than they used to and, more often than not, feel sorry about it immediately afterwards.

As a result, their fellow Americans are more understanding. In San Francisco, you can shoot a mayor dead without any graver consequences to yourself than would ensue if you stole his car.

No survey of the present age would be complete without noting that the tax laws are a national disgrace and declared to be such by none other than the president. This is not the same president who barely escaped going to jail with the rest of his staff several years ago and has just bought a million-dollar apartment on Fifth Avenue with the proceeds from sale of a house he had promised to give the nation.

This is the president who declared the moral equivalent of war on the world oil supply and tried to convert the Buddhist dictator of South Korea to Christianity. He has promised to give Americans a government that is just as good as they are, which may explain everything.

Pardon me a moment. I have to start the disco record again. I have only one disco record. With disco, one is all you need, at least until it wears out. There's a lot of wearing out going on these days.

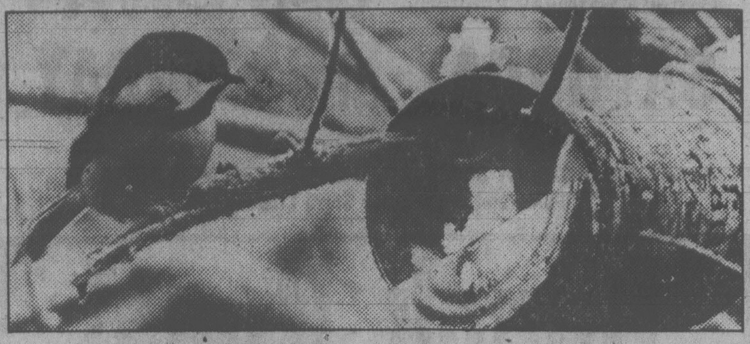
STRAY FEATHERS

Harold Hosford

Stocking the feeder



Chickadee eyes one of your more basic feeders

Early one morning last week, two juncos nipped through the yard. They were the first I'd seen — outside of the highlands — since last May. While this particular duo didn't stay, their appearance was a warning to me that the stocking of my bird feeder was overdue.

For the past three or four months the old tray has hung from the sundeck looking forlorn and abandoned. Occasionally some House Sparrows would drop in just to see if I'd opened for the season, and in August several families of House Finches came by regularly, also on the chance that the place was open for business. But all left disappointed because, as far as I'm concerned, the birds can do quite well in summer — they don't need any handouts from me.

Nor do they need any help from me during the winter. Except for those exceptional cases where snow, deep snow, covers the ground for several days, the birds that winter in these parts can do quite well without a helping hand from me.

So, why have a feeder anyway.?

Well, my excuse is that I just like to have the birds around, and a few dollars worth of food is a small price to pay for their company.

So having satisfied myself that it was time to set the table for the birds, I purchased my season's supply of millet and sunflower seeds. That's all I feed, and for good reason — that dry mix of seeds doesn't encourage crows, gulls or starlings. Unfortunately, neither does it encourage chickadees, nuthatches or woodpeckers. And that's another price I'm willing to pay because, while I don't get the aforementioned, I do get enough variety in seed-eating birds to more than make up for the absence of these favorites.

Of course if you'd like chickadees and nuthatches and woodpeckers, a few fatty foods — such as suet or peanut butter — will do the trick. But you may have to put up with starlings — and one starling can go through a lot of peanut butter in a very short time.

As a matter of fact, if you'd like to learn more about this whole business of feeding and attracting birds to your garden, drop into the British Columbia Provincial Museum and — for a dollar — you can get their little booklet that tells all on the subject. It's called, appropriately enough, Attracting and Feeding Birds in British Columbia, and a few minutes spent among its pages may save you a lot of false starts in the bird feeding game.

Among the subjects discussed are plantings that help to make your garden attractive to birds; various kinds of structures you can make to encourage birds around the place; precautions you can take to protect against unwanted intruders such as cats or squirrels; and how to care for unexpected avian casualties around the place. There's even a section on the problem of window casualties — birds striking windows — with some suggestions on how to reduce, or even prevent them.

While most of September will have been written into the books by the time you read this, it isn't too late to get a feeder going. An afternoon's work with a hammer and a saw and a couple of dollars worth of grain and you'll be in business.

Oh, yes, there's one other essential ingredient — patience. It may take the birds a few days to find your presentation but, once they do, hours of pure joy will be your reward as some of the more than 40 kinds of birds that attend feeders in British Columbia start coming to yours.

Jury acquits student

A 23-year-old university student was found not guilty by a county court jury Thursday of two charges arising from an incident which began with a traffic ticket.

Frederick Ewald Doujak was cleared of escaping from the lawful custody of Constable Robert Jones of Oak Bay and wilfully obstructing Jones on the evening of Dec. 29.

The jury deliberated four hours and 15 minutes after listening to an address by Judge Peter Millward.

In the afternoon, the jury returned to ask for further directions on the law and within five minutes came back with not guilty verdicts on both charges.

Doujak was stopped Nov. 14 while driving on Foul Bay Road and given a ticket for failing to display a valid motor-vehicle inspection sticker. The ticket included a summons to appear in provincial court Nov. 24 or pay $15. He did neither, telling the jury he imagined he took the ticket home and forgot it.

When he failed to appear in court, a warrant was issued for his arrest for his failure to appear.

Jones told the jury he went to Doujak's home, they went to the police vehicle, and he showed him a copy of the warrant, read it to him, touched him on the shoulder and explained it was in connection with a Motor-Vehicle Act matter he had neglected to look after.

Doujak, however, testified Jones never gave him an explanation, never indicated he was under arrest and never touched him on the shoulder.

Both agreed, however, that Doujak, after getting out of the car to go to his home to get identification, ran off with Jones in pursuit, eventually falling and losing sight of him.

Defence counsel Ken Murphy argued that Doujak could not be convicted of escaping the constable's custody because he didn't know he was in custody and there was no wilful obstruction.

Before the judge

Robert Edward Longmuir was charged with breaking and entering a home at 490 Broadway in Saanich while serving a total of 10 month for theft and breaking and entering in Campbell River.

Defence lawyer Vic Simpson made the bail application because Longmuir was slated for release Wednesday on the Campbell River sentences.

Allan ordered a three-year probation period so that a 24-year-old Victoria man could receive treatment under the Heroin Treatment Act.

Thomas Allan Johnson, 1114 Rockland, pleaded guilty Monday to obtaining food by fraud from the Maple Leaf Restaurant, 1213 Douglas.

Crown counsel Don Laughton advised the court Monday that Johnson skipped out on a $2.90 breakfast bill but was caught by police at Fort and Quadra. He told officers he had been drinking and taking pills the night before.

Johnson also told the judge Monday he had been going through the heroin treatment program for five months and had a minor slip, prompting Allan to delay sentencing so that more information could be obtained.

Mark Stone, a social worker at the Victoria treatment centre, testified Thursday that Johnson was an "off-and-on" patient until Sept. 4 when he was withdrawn because officials felt he was no longer fit to be dealt with.

Stone also said Johnson had left the treatment program twice previously. He said Johnson wanted to help himself but did not have enough self-discipline to do it.

Allan gave Johnson a suspended sentence and ordered him to take the treatment starting today. He also ordered Johnson to make restitution to the restaurant within 15 days.

A 21-year-old Langley man was given a 15-day jail sentence and placed on 12 months probation for impaired driving.

Eric Paul Marks, formerly of 1806 Swartz Bay Road, pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Court was told Sidney RCMP spotted Marks on the evening of Sept. 10 after squealing tires attracted their attention. A chase ensued but Marks got away, only to become involved in an accident in the 8900-block Lochside where they discovered him lying in a ditch 45 feet from his truck.

Subsequent breath test readings of .11 and .11 were obtained.

Laughton said Marks was convicted Jan. 17, 1977, in Victoria of criminal negligence and given a 20-day sentence.

Allan also fined Marks, who said he worked at Sandown Park during the harness racing season, $50 for not having a valid drivers' licence.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Albin Saen, 57, of 4506 Carolwood, $800 for two counts; Robert Michael Ericson, 26, of 1010 McKenzie, $500; Daniel Curtis Wickens, 24, of 2552 Vancouver, $400; Allan Charles Lambe, 36, of 911 Neff, $350; and Stanley George Jacobs, 70, of 310 Prospect Lake Road, $350.

Pat Bay institute director appointed

The federal government has named a Nova Scotia oceanographer as director-general of the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Patricia Bay.

He is Dr. Cedric R. Mann, 53, a native of Auckland, N.Z., who fills the post held for nine years by Dr. R.W. Stewart, now assistant deputy minister of science and technology for B.C.

Since 1975 Mann had been director of the Atlantic oceanographic laboratory for the federal ministry of ocean and aquatic sciences at Bedford Institute of Oceanography, Dartmouth, which he joined in 1961.

Prior to that he had been eight years with the Defence Research Board at Dartmouth, engaged in acoustic research for anti-submarine warfare. Mann also served as regional oceanographer on the Atlantic Coast and as head of Bedford's ocean circulation section.

The new director-general obtained his BSc. at the University of New Zealand in 1948, came to Canada the following year after earning a master's and enrolled at University of B.C. for post-graduate studies in microwave spectroscopy.

He worked at UBC as a physics department demonstrator and as an assistant at National Research Council in Ottawa and received his PhD. from UBC in 1953.

Since joining Bedford Institute Mann's research speciality has been the circulation and mixing of waters in the Northwestern Atlantic, a field of study he is expected to direct in respect to Pacific Coast oceanography.

Today's Markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was up sharply in active mid-session trading today.

Trading in shares of Pennant Resources Ltd., which was halted late Thursday pending an announcement, resumed at the opening and last traded at $1.81.

The company said it was shocked at a temporary cease-trading order issued by the Ontario Securities Commission on Thursday. It said the order prohibits certain individuals from trading in Pennant's 10-per-cent convertible sinking fund debentures but does not affect trading in Pennant shares.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading in shares of Asbestos Corp. was halted late Thursday pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $44.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau was expected to make an announcement about the company Friday. The province has said it intends to acquire the 55-per-cent interest in Asbestos owned by General Dynamics Corp. and to make a bid for all other shares.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading was halted shortly after the opening in shares of Lost River Mining Corp. Ltd. at the request of the company, pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $1.

Trading in shares of Pan Central Explorations Ltd. was also halted shortly after the opening at the request of the company, pending an announcement. The stock last traded at 73 cents.

Trading in shares of Kerr Addison Mines Ltd. was halted about 2 p.m. pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $11¼.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Of shares traded, 127 advanced, 145 declined and 132 were unchanged.

In the industrials, B.C. Resources Investment Corp. was down .10 at $7.90 on 204,145 shares and Grouse Mountain was down .01 at .70 on 5,000. Great National Land was up .05 at $1.45 on 3,700 shares and Okanagan Helicopter was unchanged at $16¼ on 3,400. Saratoga Processing was unchanged at $7½ and Taro Industries was up .05 at $3.45.

On the resource and development board, Piper Petroleums was unchanged at $8.37½ on 71,400 shares and Kandahar Resources was up .09 at $2.39 on 61,408. Comaplex Resources was up .20 at $5.80 on 47,100 shares.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The market was mixed in heavy trading Friday, leveling off after Thursday's strong rally.

The market began rising sharply late Thursday as rumors circulated about an oil find at an exploratory well off the Newfoundland coast.

Standard Oil of California's Chevron Standard subsidiary confirmed a discovery Friday. But Leo Barry, Newfoundland's mines and energy minister, said tests at the well showed a flow of oil considerably less than would be needed for commercial production.

Chevron said it would drill deeper for further tests.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 460.3, up 2.2.

Oils advanced, golds and banks declined and industrials were mixed.

Canadian stocks firmed.

Pulp up

MONTREAL (CP) — Pulp and paper shipments are expected to reach 20.4 million tonnes this year, a one-per-cent increase over the 1978 record of 20.1 million tonnes, says a forecast issued by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

The association predicted last January that pulp and paper shipments would reach 20.6 million tonnes this year. The revised estimate is lower because of work stoppages and unscheduled closures for repairs to machinery and equipment.

But newsprint shipments, Canada's most important pulp and paper product, will drop by two per cent to 8.6 million tonnes despite strong demand because of capacity lost through work stoppages, association economist David Wilson told a news conference.

Wilson said 90 per cent of newsprint production is exported.

McKeough hired

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Darcy McKeough, former treasurer of Ontario, will become president and chief executive officer of Union Gas Ltd. on Oct. 1, Malim Harding, chairman of the gas company's board of directors, has announced.

Harding said McKeough was elected a director at the company's annual meeting June 20 and that his background in business and government and his familiarity with energy matters make him an ideal choice.

McKeough was elected to the Ontario legislature in 1963 and joined the cabinet in 1966. During his career he was minister of municipal affairs, minister of energy and treasurer of Ontario, the position he held when he resigned in August, 1978.

Chopper buy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. has announced the $11-million purchase of the heliocpter operations of Calgary-based Bow River Resource Services Ltd.

The major part of the Bow fleet, along with $4 million in new flying equipment purchased by Okanagan since July 31, will be used to service offshore oil and gas exploration activities in Canada and overseas, the announcement said.

1.3B in bonds issued

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Crosbie today released details of a new $1.3-billion issue of Government of Canada non-callable bonds to be dated Oct. 1, 1979.

The issue will consist of the following maturities:

—10¾-per-cent bonds due Oct. 15, 1982, at a price of 99.75 to yield about 10.85 per cent to maturity.

—10¾-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1984, at a price of 99.50 to yield about 10.63 per cent to maturity.

—10½-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1989, at a price of 99.75 to yield about 10.54 per cent to maturity.

—10½-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 2004, at a price of 100. to yield about 10.5 per cent to maturity. There will be a maximum of $600 million of this issue.

The Bank of Canada will acquire a minimum of $400 million of the new bonds and they will open as to maturity except that a minimum of $100 million of the Oct. 1, 2004, maturity will be included.

Proceeds of the offering will be used to redeem $967 million of bonds maturing Oct. 1, 1979, and for general government purposes.

Manufacturing downturn seen

OTTAWA (CP) — Production by Canadian manufacturing industries during the second quarter of this year dropped to 86.4 per cent of capacity from 88.4 per cent in the first quarter, Statistics Canada has reported.

The decline of two percentage points from the first quarter was the latest indication of a slow-down in the economy as a whole.

Real economic growth as measured by the gross national product was down 0.7 per cent during the second quarter, the first decline since mid-1976.

The figures released Tuesday showed knitting mills and industries manufacturing rubber and plastics products were at full capacity as were miscellaneous manufacturing industries.

At the other end of the scale was the chemical industry, producing at 75.2 per cent of capacity, and primary metals at 74.8 per cent.

Statistics Canada regularly compares actual output with the maximum output possible under normal technological and market conditions.

Its figures for the second quarter show a drop in the capacity utilization rate for manufacturers of durable goods to 82.4 per cent from 85.9 in the first quarter. The rate of utilization for industries producing non-durable goods was down slightly to 90.5 per cent from 90.8 per cent.

The rate for manufacturing began to climb in late 1977 from 81.9 per cent and reached a peak in the fourth quarter of 1978 at 88.6 per cent.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in light trading on the Canadian bond market Thursday, with institutional buyers continuing to sit on the sidelines.

The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid-, long-term and provincial issues dropped one-half point. Corporate issues fell one-quarter.

Day-to-day money was available at 10½ per cent. Three-month treasury bills traded at an average of 11.50 per cent, down from 11.65 per cent last week and six-month bills at 11.88 per cent, down from 11.99 per cent.

The Investment Dealers Association said international events, such a the weak U.S. dollar and a sharp surge in the price of gold, currently at $380 (U.S.) an ounce, continued to depress the market for buyers who are looking for a measure of stability before committing funds to the long end of the bond market.

The recent Government of Canada issue, which was offered to the public last Monday, at par, were quoted Thursday at 98.50 bid and 98.75 asked.

'Instant towns' worry gov't

RICHMOND (CP) — Municipal officials who complain that the provincial government is using taxpayers' money to save millions of dollars for mining companies in the Highland Valley near Ashcroft have a legitimate concern, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Thursday.

"I'm concerned with instant towns," Vander Zalm said. "We do tend to duplicate services. This is a problem.

"We talked to Ashcroft and Merritt representatives at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention two weeks ago and I advised them to keep in close contact. We will keep a very close watch on the situation."

Municipal officials say that Victoria will be contributing heavily for residential services such as schools, a hospital and water and sewer services at an instant town in southern Interior B.C. so the companies don't have to pay their employees travelling time.

They say the money spent on the services will be a waste because those services already exist in old, established communities surrounding the Highland Valley such as Ashcroft, Merritt and Kamloops.

The complaints centre on further open-pit copper mining development in the valley and proposed expansion of Logan Lake.

While Ashcroft is about a 30-minute drive from the mine sites, Merritt 45 minutes away and Kamloops an hour, Logan Lake is within 15 minutes travelling time.

Although it is a village municipality with an elected mayor and council, Logan Lake is a company town developed by Lornex, a subsidiary of the British-owned Rio Tinto mining conglomerate.

It is reported that Lornex has put about $3.5 million into the community but in the years it has been in operation it has saved about $30 million or $40 million by not having to pay travelling time to its workers because of the existence of Logan Lake.

Expected enrolment doubles at institute

By JANE COVERNTON

The Open Learning Institute (OLI) has doubled its expected enrolment in its first courses this fall.

Registrar Dr. Denys Meakin said Thursday the OLI expected about 50 students to register in each of seven offered courses but got more than 100.

More than half the registrants were from outside the Victoria and Vancouver metropolitan areas — one from as far away as Iskut in northwestern B.C.

Most of the students are 25 to 40 years old and two-thirds are women.

There are four Grade 10 completion and three university level courses being conducted this fall.

Dr. Meakin says when 40 courses are offered in January, the enrolment could go up to 2,000 students.

The OLI is designed to reach people who would not have access to regular college courses — not only those in remote areas, but those who live in cities who can't make it to regular classes because of swing shifts, handicaps or inability to pay for babysitters.

Students are assigned a permanent advisor and a tutor for each course. Both can be contacted anytime by calling collect.

"Instead of putting capital into building classrooms, we're using the capital of the telephone company," says Dr. Meakin.

He estimates the phone bill for the institute could be $500,000 a year in five years.

Registration fees are $25 per course for high school completion, $45 per course for career certification and $60 per course for university level.

There is no pressure to produce school records.

"We want to make it as easy as possible for people," says Dr. Meakin.

He is proud of the way courses are designed. Each is prepared by two subject specialists and reviewed by a professional editor and an instructional designer.

The OLI budget for this year is $3.5 million, but that includes development of 40 courses and most of an additional 40 that will be offered next September.

There are 80 staff members, based mostly in Richmond. But regional offices opened this week in Prince George and Kelowna.

Meakin says that one of the big misconceptions about the institute is that it is dependent on television.

Registration for the spring semester has started and closes Dec. 15.

CN-CP 'cheats public' on service, says union

By MIKE HUGHES

CN-CP will not provide direct telecommunication service to Victoria for nearly five weeks and a union spokesman says the company is cheating the public.

Don Ackert, general chairman of the Canadian Telecommunications Union's Pacific region, said in an interview from Vancouver cables, telegrams, telex messages and money orders for people in Victoria are terminated in CN-CP's Vancouver office.

Then they are phoned or telexed over, a process which could lead to delays of four or five hours or even more, Ackert said.

The Victoria employees also feel the move is an indication the company intends to eventually close the Victoria office.

The interruption of Victoria messages in Vancouver began Tuesday because one out of the four Victoria CN-CP office employees is going to be away on holiday over the next four weeks and the company feels it would be too much for the three remaining employees to take outgoing and incoming messages.

"There is no curtailment of service," argued Art Kinney, manager of CN-CP's Vancouver message centre.

"By Oct. 22 everything will be back to normal."

He said CN-CP did this once before for two or three days when a legislative session put a heavy load on the Victoria office.

"It just makes it easier for them not to have to handle receive traffic."

But Ackert doesn't see it that way.

He said the Victoria office will only be short one worker during the four-week period and there are other ways the company could have handled that situation.

It is not right that a capital city has to suffer cutbacks in telegraph service, Ackert said.

He said there are a lot of overseas cables coming to Victoria because of the number of people of British extraction living in the city.

Ackert said he has written to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunication Commission complaining about the cutback.

Levesque fires two ministers

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque announced his first major cabinet shuffle today. He fired two ministers — Louis O'Neill and Rodrigue Tremblay — and demoted two others.

But just 90 minutes before he was fired, Tremblay launched a vicious personal attack on Levesque and the Parti Quebecois government, and resigned from the cabinet and from the PQ.

"There has been an operation for the last three weeks to get rid of me," Tremblay told reporters at a brief news conference.

The career economist accused Levesque of surrounding himself with "yes men" who had spread rumors that amounted to "a campaign to discredit me morally, professionally and politically."

In his five-page resignation letter, delivered personally to the premier today, Tremblay said the PQ government is ruining the province's economy by increasing state control, running up a huge deficit and passing bills which do not reflect business reality.

"Throughout my career as an economist I have always abhorred short-term electoral opportunism, which is carried out at the expense of our economic progress...not taking into account the North American reality."

He said he had been acting in the role of "a quasi-opposition member, but not always with success, in the cabinet for the last three years."

"I was the only one in the cabinet fighting for the economy," said Tremblay, noting there were no businessmen in the PQ government.

Tremblay said when he entered politics in 1976, he criticized the outgoing Liberal government for borrowing "hundreds of millions of dollars" in long-term international loans to finance current expenditures.

"This is madness," he told reporters.

Levesue did not refer to Tremblay's criticism when he announced the cabinet changes.

As well as firing the two cabinet ministers, he dropped Lise Payette as minister of consumer affairs, while Lucien Lessard was moved out of the big-budget transport department.

$839,000 set for seniors

OTTAWA (UPC) — More than 18,000 retired Canadians in 163 senior citizen groups across the country will receive some $839,000 in grants to aid in community projects.

Health Minister David Crombie announced Thursday that the funds would be available under the department's "New Horizons" program.

They will be used by senior citizens associations for recreational purposes.

School car park plan angers parents

The Parents' Auxiliary to Burnside Elementary fears a proposed move by the school board will endanger their youngsters and diminish playing areas at the school.

The board has been considering moving its headquarters from the Paul Building on Foul Bay Road, which is being taken over again by Camosun College, to a building owned by the board on Cecelia Street next to the Burnside School.

Hilda Jack, chairman of the auxiliary, said Thursday the move would include provision for 250 parking spaces — considered a hazard for the children.

"The area is already zoned light industrial. There are no traffic lights. The roads are very narrow and in some places there are no sidewalks. The addition of 250 more cars would be unsafe."

The proposal also would mean that a playing field at the school would be turned over to parking for the board.

Jack said the school is already short of playing areas.

The B.C. Building School manual, put out by the education ministry, calls for each school to have four to five acres of land.

Burnside now has 3.1 acres and removal of the playing field would reduce that to 2.26 acres, most of which has buildings on it.

"There is no gymnasium at the school. A lot of activities have to go on outdoors. There are no parks in the area. The playing field is the only green space. You can't justify taking away the playing field and building a parking lot," Jack said.

The parents took a brief to the board last May, suggesting they look instead at Tolmie School which has been closed.

Jack said the Tolmie location, across from the Town and Country Shopping Centre, has a number of things in its favor — it would cost less to renovate, there would be adequate parking, and it is closer to downtown.

The issue comes to a vote at the school board meeting on Monday.

PERSIAN RUG SALE
WHY BUY PERSIAN RUGS?
BECAUSE IF: There is a Persian rug on the floor. What does that tell you about its owner? Probably that he is well-off. Also, he'll be a secure person because a Persian rug is a good saleable item in these inflation-ridden times. It is easier to sell expensive Oriental carpets today in a sluggish economy than it was in the 1950's and 60's although the average price of an authentic Oriental carpet has greatly increased in recent years. An Oriental rug is an excellent hedge against inflation because its value increases constantly. The reason for this is the increased wealth and industrialization of Mid-East countries. Weavers and master artists are leaving their traditional work, and are entering industrial employment. In Addition the Shah of Iran had introduced compulsory education thereby effectively eliminating the employment of children in rug weaving, says Ejaz Khan of B.C. Palace Ltd. Mr. Khan will be displaying an excellent selection of Persian carpets and rugs that will appeal to the discriminating and budget conscious home decorator and art lovers offered to you at Bargain Prices. Mr. Khan invites you to come and investigate the opportunities provided by Oriental carpets, to make an investment that safeguards your money and provides you with luxury as it appreciates.

Oil-for-studies swap proposed

He estimated Thursday that one undergraduate student could be educated for a year for the equivalent cost of about 250 barrels of crude.

Dreyfus, who just returned from a three-day international conference on the human environment in northern regions in Edmonton, said he proposed the trade to Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

"He seemed interested," Dreyfus said.

He said Alberta, a major oil producer is expanding so rapidly it will soon have to cotemplate expanding its educational ystem.

Wisconsin, on the other hand, needs energy and is facing declining enrolments of up to 10,000 students in state educational institutions.

He said Wisconsin could offer to educate one undergraduate student a year in return for 250 barrels of crude oil, or a graduate student for 285 barrels.

Terrorists kill Fiat executive

TURIN (UPI) — Urban guerrillas shot and killed a high-ranking executive of the Fiat automobile company Friday as he walked out of his apartment with his wife. It was Italy's 15th terrorist assassination of the year.

Police said four members of the Marxist Front Line gang were responsible for the ambush of Carlo Ghiglieno, Fiat's director for automotive pleanning and the highest-ranking Fiat executive ever attacked by urban guerrillas.

His wife, Matilde, was unharmed in the shooting but watched her 51-year-old husband die in her arms after he was hit by four shots from a .38 caliber pistol.

TOWN TALK

Those folks out in Metchosin have seen some strange things so it's not likely they'll be too upset by an egg-beater style experimental windmill to be erected near Rocky Point.

The provincial ministry of energy, along with B.C. Hydro and the National Research Council, plans to put up the wind generator on national defence department land as a demonstration project to check the feasibility of wind-generated power on the west coast.

The whole whirly-gig affair is hush-hush at this point, but Town Talk has confirmed a $150,000 generator capable of producing 60 kilowatts of power — or enough to supply the normal electrical needs of a dozen homes — will be spinning away by next spring.

Don Davidson, 2233 Victor, has a post office story to add to Town Talk's growing file.

He has just received a parcel from his son in Cranbrook. No, the parcel wasn't damaged beyond recognition but how does the post office explain the fact it came here via Seattle and Vancouver customs. The trip took 12 days. The stamps on the wrapper tell the story.

Has Vancouver Island suddenly become a foreign country?

The only explanation a post office spokesman here could give was that the parcel could have been inadvertently chucked into the U.S. bag at Cranbrook.

It was a day of reckoning for those ministerial bodyguards, that bunch of information-dispensing flacks who divert the press from its appointed task of skewering cabinet ministers with brilliant, incisive questions.

It was the annual press versus cabinet ministers' executive assistants softball game Wednesday evening (to be known forever after as Wipeout Wednesday) in Beacon Hill Park.

It was a mercifully short affair with the press, like the Expos who played a somewhat less significant double-header the same night, emerging victorious, continuing their supremacy over the EAs as they're called around the Legislative Buildings.

A late-inning rally by the EAs was far too little, too late as they came up on the low end of the 24-18.

CURTIS
. . . limps east

If there's one thing Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis won't do in future, it's try to go down the basement stairs in his home in the dark.

The minister took a tumble on the eve of a trip to New Brunswick and ended up with an ankle that was decidedly ouch.

Curtis consulted a doctor, was informed he had a severe sprain but was told, in effect, "walk it off".

He did — to the extent of tottering up and down the aisle of the plane which took him back east — but in Toronto, ouch became agony and Curtis went to a doctor there.

Some day computers may take over the world and the thought is downright frightening to Ronald Woolcock, 3501 Savannah.

He got only three letters on Wednesday morning, all from ICBC, and all telling a different story.

One said that because of penalty points he owed $144. The second said he owed $306. A third said he was entitled to a safe driving vehicle discount of $70.

"I don't think all three of them are right," Woolcock said.

Probably not, especially since the computer even had trouble with his name. Incredibly, his insurance renewal form, although sent to the right address, called him Ronald Woodcock.

In Vancouver, ICBC was a little bewildered by it all.

"It's a pretty complicated case and we're still trying to sort it out," an official said.

Lydia Kasianchuk will produce new Heritage series

Voices of all nations

By JANE COVERNTON

Victoria's first multi-cultural radio show — called Heritage — starts this Sunday at 10 a.m. on CFMS-FM.

The 13-week series opens with a Chinese program and ends with an all-nations Christmas program.

The shows will be in English, with music and short histories of how each group came to Victoria.

Producer Lydia Kasianchuk persuaded CFMS (98.5) to run the series on an experimental basis after phone calls and letters poured in about the Ukrainian Christmas show she did last year.

She got the idea of doing multi-cultural programming when she worked on human rights with the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria and realized how many groups there are in Victoria and how little the public seems to know about them.

"The cultural heritage of each group is part of the heritage of all of Canada and it's interesting to know about that," says Kasianchuk.

She's learned new things since she started working on the series.

For example: there are more than 100 families in the Victoria Black People's Society and as recently as the early part of this century, Chinese children were not allowed to go to public school.

"There are so many interesting people here, such a richness of various cultures. Most people don't have access to that."

Kasianchuk has been working with the cultural associations and they decided on the series focus.

The Canadian Hungarian Society, for example, will focus on how many of their people came to Canada in 1958 after the Soviet Union invaded Hungary.

She says if the program continues past the 13 weeks, they'll have a chance to go into things in more depth.

Kasianchuk suggests an hour might be devoted to black jazz or a whole series on Ukrainian opera.

Kasianchuk has taught high school, edited the Canadian Slavonic Papers and once, she says with a smile, was assistant producer of the Howdy-Doody Show.

But her interest in multi-cultural broadcasting probably goes back to when she was three and made her show business debut on her father's Ukrainian show in Edmonton.

Her father started the first ethnic radio program in that city in 1938. He had to arrange music, sing, and conduct the orchestra for 117 live broadcasts.

She should have a slightly easier time of it. But it's a lot of work and she's doing it for what amounts to an honorarium.

She says CFMS program manager Murray Cownden has given her lots of support, offering to run the program even if sponsors can't be found.

Hudsons never received offer of $200,000

An article in the Times on Sept. 5 quoted A.B. Kool, who is involved in assembly of land for the projected Royal Oak industrial park, as saying that Mrs. Joan Hudson of 701 Vanalman had been offered and refused a price in excess of $200,000 for her home.

Mrs. Hudson has told the Times that neither she nor any member of the family has ever received an offer for her property.

And Kool has written to the Times to say: "I must sincerely apologize for that statement, for it turned out to be untrue. I therefore take full responsibility for the erroneous article . . ."

The Victoria Times also apologizes to Mrs. Hudson and sincerely regrets any inconvenience the article may have caused her.

Moonies back seeking funds

The Moonies are back in town going door to door and asking for donations, Ald. Robin Blencoe said today.

The young, clean-cut members of the Korean Unification church run by the highly controversial Rev. Sun Myung Moon have already canvassed parts of James Bay, saying they are asking for money for "youth work," he said.

However, no one knows where the money goes that they collect.

A spokesman for the Victoria Better Business Bureau said they have had several inquiries already about the Moonies and their fund raising.

She said they do not meet BBB standards because they have refused in the past to tell the local office and Better Business Bureaus across the country what they do with the money.

Solar heated crystal?

The Crystal Pool could be warmed by a solar heating system that would pay for itself in little more than three years and save the city at least $9,000 annually in oil bills after that, city council was told Thursday.

A B.C. Hydro assessment of the pool said an unglazed solar heating plant could be built at the pool for about $70,000. The city is eligible for a 50 per cent grant from the province to help pay capital costs, according to city engineer John Sansom.

Hydro engineer Stuart Leslie gave a preliminary estimate of a saving of 17,500 gallons of fuel oil a year. Assuming a price of 50 cents a gallon, he said the saving just the first year would be $8,750.

Ald. Robin Blencoe was asked by his colleagues as chairman of council's recreational facilities committee to draw up a proposal that could be included in the 1980 budget.

Provincial probe asked by Blair on Jubilee woes

Ald. Colin Blair of Esquimalt has asked Health Minister Bob McClelland to order a full inquiry into the the Royal Jubilee Hospital controversy.

Blair said today the situation is much too serious to be solved at the municipal level and an inquiry must be held to set the public at rest.

On Wednesday, the medical staff at the hospital demanded Terry Prentice resign as chairman of the board because they have lost confidence in him.

Prentice was appointed to the board by Esquimalt.

Ald. Larry Mann said Thursday he will propose a motion of confidence in Prentice at the next Esquimalt council meeting.

Blair's letter to McClelland said in the last few months there have been serious charges in the press about operations at RJH.

He mentioned suggestions that unnecessary operations are being performed and that the solution is for less people to get sick.

Blair also mentioned reports the hospital has been unable to get nurses while there are simaltaneous suggestions nurses are unable to get jobs, reports that there are long waiting lists and that some wards are being closed, that people waiting for surgery are finding it postponed the day before.

He referred to reports that Victoria council appointees refused to appear before council.

"This raises the suggestion that appointees are not accountable to the people who appointed them."

Blair said it would not be useful to have Prentice appear before Esquimalt council.

"It's now beyond the power of Esquimalt council to solve these problems. The only way is a full inquiry. I don't think I have sufficient information to support or condemn a motion of confidence in Prentice," said Blair.

Blair would not go along with Mann's assertion that doctors are responsible for budget problems at RJH.

"I find it hard to believe that 120 doctors can be wrong," he said.

Mann said he will not support a motion asking McClellend for an inquiry.

"I think the hospital board is capable of looking after the operations of the hospital. I don't think an inquiry is necessary at this time."

Meanwhile, Dr. Scott Wallace today accused Mann of carrying out a hit-and-run assault on the medical profession.

He said Mann first said doctors are responsible for most of the health costs at hospitals and then, when challenged to prove it with details, said he could make no further statement because he is a provincial government employee in the ministry of health.

"Mann might have considered that fact before making the statement but, having made it, he should publicly defend it now that he has been challenged."

Mann is employed in management services under Health Minister McClelland.

Wallace said Mann must be publicly called to account for his statement.

Wallace said medical costs are the result of improved technology, which, while much more efficent, are very expensive.

"When a patient walks into my office I want to give him the best type of care available. It is because of this improved technology that costs are going up.

"The only way to control costs is to have the minister say he is content to give people second-class care. I don't think anyone wants that."

It is expensive to administer diagnostic tests and sometimes it takes several to find the answer, Wallace said.

"Sometimes it takes as many as five tests to find the answer. It is expensive but maybe the fifth test will save a life. I'm not content to offer second-class care."

Glazier sees Cityplan as 80s key

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Ald. Murray Glazier officially opened his mayoralty campaign today with a promise to set up a citizens' task force called Cityplan to draft a plan for Victoria in the 1980s.

"I've been troubled and concerned that as a council we've been unable to solve a number of issues large and small," Glazier told a press conference.

If elected, his first act will be to call together representatives of different groups in the city — as many as 100 people from business, labor, senior citizens, community associations — and ask them to determine what the public wants.

"It's your city. Let's plan it together. Let's have a partnership of city hall and the citizens of Victoria."

The Cityplan task force would examine such issues as population and jobs, services for the elderly, whether there should be an additional major park in Victoria, neighborhood devlopment, transportation, recreation, health care and hospitals and policing, Glazier said.

The alderman, who is chairman of the city's finance committee and also chairman of the Capital Regional District, said Cityplan doesn't mean that politicians who are elected to lead and make decisions on controversial issues would be passing the buck.

"I don't see it that way. Until recently people have been content to leave decisions to council. I perceive that things have changed. Things move too fast now. The public should be involved continually."

The task force would consult the public through community meetings and opinion polls, he added.

Residents might be asked to fill in questionnaires asking their opinion, for example, on street hawkers and spraying 2,4-D in the parks and larger issues like Inner Harbor development.

"Leadership is fine," said Glazier, "but you ought to lead in the direction your constituents want to go."

He said he shares the concerns of many Victorians over the present state of affairs.

"Many of our elderly people sre feeling the hurt of inflation and little of the benefits. Our hospital care situation is precarious and many find property tax a worry," he said.

NEW YORK (CP) — "What's that old saying?" Montreal manager Dick Williams asked. "I'd rather be lucky than good. Well, we're good enough, but we'll take all the luck we can get."

The Expos had just completed their second doubleheader sweep of the New York Mets in two days, and those four victories gave them a one-half game lead over Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Thursday night in the Expos locker room, though, it sounded like they had just won the National League pennant, at the very least. "I think we've got a right to be whooping and hollering a little bit," Williams said.

The four-game sweep made a believer out of Mets manager Joe Torre. Torre had picked Pittsburgh to win the NL East, but after the Expos visit, he wasn't so sure.

"This team (the Expos) is starting to play like a team of destiny," Torre said.

The Expos won the first game 6-3, exploding for four runs in the eighth inning to crack a 2-2 tie. Jerry White started the inning with a leadoff homer.

Montreal won the second game 2-0 with two runs in the ninth and the seven-hit pitching of right-hander Scott Sanderson, 9-7, who struck out nine and walked just one.

The Expos started the night one-half game back of the Pirates, who lost 2-1 in Philadelphia.

"I felt all along that those doubleheaders in front of us were our only obstacle," said Montreal catcher Gary Carter. "We sweep two here, go to a big series with Philadelphia and then comes the showdown Monday."

Randy Lerch, 10-12, struck out a career-high nine batters and pitched a nine-hitter for the Phils. Manny Trillo's RBI single in the seventh off Pirates relief ace Kent Tekulve, 10-8, provided the decisive run and Pete Rose had two hits to extend his consecutive-game hitting streak to 18.

A five-run explosion in the eighth inning Thursday night enabled Cincinnati Reds to remain 2½ games ahead of Houston Astros in the National League West as the clubs prepare for a showdown series starting tonight that may well decide the divisional title.

The outbreak gave the Reds an 8-5 victory over San Diego Padres.

Johnny Bench had a two-run double in the inning and Dan Driessen doubled in the go-ahead run.

San Diego was leading 5-2 with two out when the Reds erupted.

"The Houston score was staring us in the face as we were getting beat," said Reds manager John McNamara. "This win means we take some momentum into the Astrodome." Houston kept pace with a 7-1 victory over Atlanta Braves.

Cincinnati and Houston square off for three games starting tonight with pitching aces Tom Seaver and J.R. Richard hurling.

A pair of fielding errors by Darrel Chaney and Terry Puhl's two doubles keyed the Houston victory. Ken Forsch, who threw his first complete game since July 28, pitched a nine-hitter.

"I was glad to see Puhl get back on the track," said Astros manager Bill Virdon. Puhl was rested the last two nights. "He played a lot of ballgames and sometimes a couple of days off get you back in the groove."

The American League West divisional race is a matter of simple mathematics for manager Jim Fregosi of California Angels.

Fregosi's first-place Angels arrived in Kansas City three games ahead of the Royals, then played four games, and left exactly as they arrived: three games up.

"And that's four more games off the schedule," he noted, even if three of the Angels' remaining nine contests are against Kansas City.

"I'd say if we win five out of nine, we've got it," said California's Bobby Grich.

In the other pennant race game Minnesota Twins trimmed New York Yankees, 3-1. The Twins are only four games out and also must be considered.

Brian Downing hit a three-run homer, Bobby Grich hit a controversial two-run shot, and Don Baylor had three RBI — raising his major league-leading total to 138 — in California's victory over Kansas City.

After George Brett's three-run homer keyed a four-run eighth and brought the Royals within 8-6, Grich was awarded a home run when umpire Jim Evans ruled a fan had interfered with his drive to right.

John Castino drove in all the Minnesota runs with a single and a two-run homer, powering the Twins over the Yankees.

As for the American League East, the magic number for Baltimore over Milwaukee is two.

The Orioles defeated Detroit Tigers, 8-7.

Rookie winger sparks easy Cougar victory

CAMPBELL RIVER — Rookie winger Don Deschewes fired three goals Thursday night to give Victoria Cougars a relatively-easy 6-1 win over New Westminster Bruins in the sixth game of their seven-game Western Hockey League pre-season exhibition series.

Cougars now lead the series 3-2-1 with the final encounter scheduled for 8 tonight at Mill Bay Arena.

Deschewes, who played for Langley Canadians of the B.C. Junior League last season, scored all three of his unanswered goals in the first period. Cougars led 6-1 going into the final frame.

Bud McCarthy, Dave Bourne and Tony Feltrin added the other markers for Victoria while Andy Risteau averted a shutout for Bruins.

Kevin Eastman went the distance in goal for Cougars, who took six out of the 17 minutes in penalties.

The Victoria club faces a squad of Vancouver Canucks rookies next Thursday at Memorial Arena before opening the regular season schedule at home to Bruins on Sept. 29.

Sandown getting ready

By BILL WALKER

With the standardbreds gone, can the thoroughbreds be heading down the stretch at Sandown?

Well, almost.

The limestone has been taken off, the dirt put back and the track should be ready for galloping by the first of the month, says George Harknett, president of the Capital City Turf Club.

The CCTC will present its annual 16-day fall thoroughbred program at Sandown beginning Wednesday, Oct. 17, and concluding Nov. 12.

And Harknett is highly optimistic of success primarily because of a new purse structure.

An agreement with the B.C. Racing Commission has enabled the CCTC to have a guaranteed purse minimum of $1,500 which is the highest ever at Sandown.

"It is most attractive," said Harknett, "and already we have had 200 applications for stall space which is more than we had at the same time last year." There is space available for about 300 horses.

"I feel that we will have better horses and director of racing Aubrey Davies is confident that the 30 per cent increase in purse minimums will result in the best quality of thoroughbreds ever to race at the track," said Haknett.

Victoria's Wayne Isbister, who is the leading trainer at Exhibition Park, has indicated he is bringing about 20 head while Sonny O'Connell and Dave Forster are others who also have promised their support.

While the list of horses coming is far from complete, as the start of the meeting is still a month away, some of the better runners assured are Jet Sailor, a three-yer old, jointly owned by Harknett and Ray Bryant; Jesta Streakin, a three-yer old filly also owned by Harknett and Bryant; Garfield, a $30,000 purhase at Del Mar by Fraser McColl; and Kapakahi, a three-year old filly, also owned by McColl.

Then there's Pickle Pie. Pickle Pie, it will be recalled, was the winningest horse in Canada two years ago with nine victories. Last year he slipped to two but this year he is back on track and tonight goes after No. 6 at Ex Park.

With Davies returning as director of racing, most of the other officials will be the same as before with one notable exception.

Harry Filion, long-time publicity director, gives up that role to go to the roof. Filion has been named presiding steward.

Commission stewards will be Don Dunn and Joe Horton.

No decision has yet been made on wagering. However, Harknett feels that the gimmick betting, quinellas and exactors, will likely be split about even.

Eight races will be carded on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays with nine or 10 races on Saturdays and holidays.

Post time will be 1:00 p.m. on weekdays and 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays.

Players reprieved

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Kermit Washington and Kevin Kunnert were given a delay in reporting to Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association, the Blazers have announced.

Blazers officials also said they and San Diego Clippers had agreed to extend until 2 p.m. today a decision by San Diego on whether to send guard Randy Smith to the Blazers or $350,000 and a 1981 first-round draft choice as part of the Bill Walton compensation package.

Australian bowler starts well

BANGALORE, India (Reuter) — Australian spinner Bruce Yardley, who was left out of the first test, dismissed both Indian opening batsmen in the second cricket test Thursday.

India finished the second day's play on 69 for two in reply to the Australians' first innings total of 333.

Striker costs Albion $800,000

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — West Bromwich Albion has signed John Deehan, England's under-21 international soccer striker, from Aston Villa. Deehan, 21, cost West Bromwich about $800,000.

Camosun course set up on environmental issues

OUTDOORS

Some rambling notes along the trail:

Camosun College, in conjunction with the Victoria branch of the Sierra Club, is sponsoring a special course entitled Environmental Issues that should be of interest to anyone concerned with the well-being of the outdoors.

The course, which has attracted some of the top experts in each field, costs $28 and consists of 10 lectures starting Monday at Mt. Douglas High School.

Lectures are by: Dr. Derek Ellis, UVic marine ecologist and consultant (Estuaries, Monday); Bill Munro of the Fish and Wildlife Branch (Threatened and Endangered Species, Oct. 1); Bob Nixon of the Sierra Club plus spokesmen from the Parks and Outdoor Recreation Division and the Forest Service (Wilderness Issues on Vancouver Island, Oct. 15); T.M. Apsey, deputy minister of forests (Tropical Rain Forests, Oct. 22); Lorna Barr of B.C. Islands Trust (The Gulf Islands - Problems and Strategies, Oct. 29); Wally Raepple of the Ministry of Mines (The Conservor Society, Nov. 5); Rick Goodacre of B.C. Recycling Council (Recycling, Nov. 19); Gary Runka, former chairman of B.C. Land Commission (Farmland Preservation in B.C., Nov. 26) and Dr. Derek Sewell UVic geographer (World Water Problems, Dec. 3).

Registration will be accepted from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday in the Ewing Building at Camosun or prior to the start of the first lecture Monday at Mt. Douglas High.

A son managed to outdo his father Sunday in the monthly Sunburn Derby for Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association.

Malcolm MacPherson captured first prize with an 11 pound, two ounce coho. George Puritch was runner-up with an 11 pound chinook and Malcolm's father, Ace, was third with a 9:02 coho.

Skiers of Victoria take heart.

It's a tape — perhaps not as good as the cancelled provincial government toll-free line to Vancouver that permitted two-way communication — but CKDA radio operates a 24-hour ski report line during the season.

The number is 384-3422.

And, of course, this paper will be carrying ski reports on page two of every Friday edition for areas within range of a weekend trip from Victoria.

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 15 at the Strawberry Vale Hall, 11 High Street.

Jack Lenfesty, the local conservation officer, will be on hand to show some slides he took (they should be good) on the Goldstream salmon enhancement project and the sea otter transplant. In addition, he will be prepared to answer questions on the new hunting regulations.

Spectrum boosts field hockey lead

Spectrum tripped Parkland 4-2 Thursday to take a four-point lead in the "A" division of the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Field Hockey League.

Dana Harpham led the victory with two goals.

In the other "A" division match, Mt. Douglas blanked St. Michael's University School, 6-0.

Belmont downed St. Margaret's 4-0, Claremont tripped Mt. Douglas 2-0 and Dunsmuir topped Belmont 4-0 in "B" division play.

Hot Hitter makes Filion feel just like Ben Hur

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Herve Filion says he felt just like Ben Hur, standing in his sulky behind Little Brown Jug winner Hot Hitter and waving his whip to the cheering crowd.

Filion was taking a victory lap Thursday before 41,027 at the Delaware (Ohio) County Fairgrounds, scene of Hot Hitter's straight victories in 1:57 3-5 and 1:55 3-5 in the middle leg of three-year-old pacing's Triple Crown.

"Ben Hur. I love that picture. I saw it six times," Filion said.

But you could bet Ben Hur had no horse pulling his chariot like Hot Hitter, now the richest single season harness horse in history. His earnings of $716,939 eclipses Abercrombie's previous standard of $703,260 set in 1978.

After Hot Hitter's neck victory over first division winner Tijuana Taxi in the raceoff, Filion had only one regret. "I wanted to go for the (half-mile track) world record but the track was a bit off. I really would have been disappointed if I got beat.

Enjoy an A&W Whistle Dog

and get a Dog Whistle* to train him with

Two weeks only Monday, September 17 to Sunday, September 30.

But don't get them confused. The Whistle Dog is the great tasting one. It starts out like a hot dog and then we add some great little touches. Like Canadian bacon, processed cheese and relish. As for the dog whistle, it's pretty simple. We don't add any of those things. But you can use it to order your next Whistle Dog. At your participating A&W only.

Blind Derby huge success; Oliver winner of Seattle race

AROUND OUR SHORES

Pat Dufour

This week's accolades go to the members of the Capital City Yacht Club who turned out en masse Saturday to help make the club's 27th annual fishing derby for the blind a huge success.

Organized by fleet captain Ken Waterman, the skippers and crews of 31 boats had 73 blind people and their escorts on the water by 10 a.m., lunches being provided by the boat-owners.

Weigh-in-time was 2:30 p.m. Ken tallied results, Doug Pitt handled the scales.

Larry and Isabel Beveridge of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind organized transportation.

With the guidance of her skipper, Jack Seedhouse, Jackie McDormand netted the largest salmon — eight pounds, 10 ounces to take the trophy.

Other prizes went to Kathy Roscamp, J. Molner, Mary Sampson, Bill Houston, Mrs. L. Jepson, G. Hawe, Judy Nelson, G. Lindquist, Peter Bourne and Bill Grafton.

Another well-done should go to Greg Oliver and his crew from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club who sailed The Distant Drummer to victory in the Seattle Yacht Club's Great Equalizer Race The Distant Drummer not only placed first in Division IV but also won the trophy for the best performance.

Greg had an extra measure of satisfaction in his win because he beat his closest rival, Ken Pearce's The Pearce Arrow from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. Greg lost Swiftsure to Ken by a scant 3½ minutes.

Another Victoria boat that did well in the International Offshore Rule competition was Louis Lindholm's Annie Cadby. She placed third in Division II. Ross Mathewson's Kotuku broke her headstay and was unable to finish.

In Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet competition Hugh Porter's Errigal placed 13th in Division B, Don Wilson's Menehune came sixth in Division D and Ken Brown's Razzmattazz was ninth in Division F.

The RVYC has its annual U.S. Navy Buoy Race on Sunday. Boats will be racing either IOR or PHRF and will get their start at 10 a.m. at the mouth of Cadboro Bay. The first boats in both divisions must finish within eight hours.

The club's dinghy sailors will have series racing Saturday starting at 1:30 p.m.

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association's annual women skippers' race was won by Edna Sargent in Southern Comfort. Runners-up were Tora Thyvold in Gjoa and Donna Morgan in Dania.

Southern Comfort also won the cruising class B series race sailed in the afternoon, being followed by Ed Haines' Lotte and Gjoa. Frank Towler placed first in Laser competition, Morris Robinson won in Fireballs and top 420 skipper was Robin Moore.

There will be dinghy sailing again on Sunday, starting at 1 p.m. and cruising class boats will have a 10 a.m. start for the Albatross Trophy race.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club will start its new racing season on Saturday with a six-miler in waters off Sidney starting at 1 p.m.

The Cadboro Bay Sailing Association finished its dinghy enclosure in Cadboro Bay Gyro Park on Wednesday and is just about ready to go into action. A general membership meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 30 in the Scout Hall in Cadboro Bay Village to work out details of the sailing program to start in October.

The Naval Officers Training Centre in CFB Esquimalt will have some on-the-water competition next Friday afternoon in Esquimalt. There will be teams competing among themselves as well as against crews from the destroyers of the training squadron.

The program will include whaler pulling, a crash whaler race and sailing in 420s. Twenty-men crews will use paddles and whalers for a "war canoe" race.

Named for the old British training ship, this will be the Conway Trophy Regatta with part of the ship's old railing being the trophy.

The Victoria Canoe Club is again putting on a course in basic paddling skills and canoe safety. There will be four indoor sessions at the Crystal Garden, to be followed by two outdoor sessions. The cost is $20 per person. Those taking the course must provide their own canoe, paddle and PFD (personal flotation device).

The course will be held Sundays from 8 to 10 a.m., beginning Oct. 14. Registrar is Derek Bamforth of the Pacific Canoe Base, 2155 Dowler Place. His phone number is 382-1243.It's wise to register as soon as possible because only 20 will be admitted.

Kent wraps tour up with win

Kent County Cricket Club finished a two-day sweep of Victoria and District Association select squads Thursday, defeating a Victoria XI by 84 runs at Beacon Hill Park.

It was also the last match on an unblemished 11-day, six-game tour of the province.

The travelling professional side chalked up 336 runs with Graham Johnson showing the way with 85. Christopher Tavare added 78 while Neil Taylor (50), Nicholas Kemp (40) and Alan Ealham (38) made significant contributions.

Elvin Carter led Victoria bowlers, taking three wickets for the loss of 29 runs while Dennis Shaw toppled three for 81.

Michael Nation led Victoria batsmen to 252 with 75, not out, and Cec Meyers chipped in 41.

Tavare knocked down two for 27 to lead Kent bowlers.

The visiting side was scheduled to leave for home today.

Rent subsidy studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The government could help the poor and elderly pay their rent for about one-third the total cost of a subsidy plan for homeowners unveiled this week, says a report prepared for the Clark cabinet.

Government sources say the report puts a price tag of about $750 million a year on a rent subsidy program for about 500,000 low-income and senior citizen households where there is a tough scramble each month to meet the rent.

That compares with a $2.3-billion annual price tag on the mortgage interest and property tax subsidy for homeowners announced Monday by Finance Minister John Crosbie. That is the cost at the end of the plan's four-year introduction period in 1982.

But unlike the Crosbie plan, which would give federal income tax rebates of up to $1,500 even to those who don't need it, the rent subsidy would be aimed directly at senior citizens and families in the most difficulty. Generally, that would mean those laying out more than 30 per cent of their income for rent.

Sources say some members of the Clark minority government believe the rent subsidy is necessary to head off a major Commons confrontation with opposition parties over the homeowner plan. The Conservatives hold only 135 seats, seven short of a majority.

The Liberals, with 113 seats, have already indicated they will vote against the homeowner plan unless something is added for renters, and spokesmen for the New Democratic Party, with 26 seats, have demanded a better deal for renters and the most needy homeowners.

Key to passage is the tiny contingent of Social Credit members with six votes. A spokesman for party leader Fabien Roy said he sticks by earlier statements that he generally favors the mortgage plan. But details of the Crosbie plan will be studied in depth before a final decision is made.

Although the government moved quickly to announce the homeowner mortgage plan to fulfill a major campaign promise, a decision on a rent subsidy or shelter allowance appears some distance away.

A report to cabinet says that a subsidy program for senior citizens alone could be implemented for about $75 million a year.

But the Conservatives, who are pledged to eliminate the current $11.3-billion budget deficit by the mid-1980s, are reluctant to spend more money. They felt they had to come through on the mortgage plan or face the wrath of the voters.

Nothing was ever promised for renters or the poor.

District of North Saanich
WATER RESTRICTIONS

Council wishes to express their appreciation to the residents of North Saanich, especially the northern area, who cooperated by reducing their consumption of community piped water during the critical period of August.

Any restrictions on the use of water are hereby repealed. It is anticipated that the improvements to the water distribution system will eliminate any emergencies during future peak periods of usage.

Voodoo plea fails

TORONTO (CP) — A housekeeper who said evil spirits compelled her to attack her employer was sentenced Thursday to 18 months in reformatory.

Mr. Justice William Maloney of the Ontario Supreme Court said he would recommend that Emily Mae Hernandi, 40, be given psychiatric help.

Mrs. Hernandi attacked her employer, Arlene Zweig, and told police a curse had been placed on her. A black voodoo doll was found in the house.

Bakich free to come back

OTTAWA (CP) — Edmonton pensioner Jakov Bakich, who faced war-crimes charges in Ygusoslav courts, is free to return to Canada and is expected back next week, an external affairs spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said the department has just been informed an appeal against Bakich's acquittal on the charges has been rejected by the Montenegro state supreme court.

Bakich was charged with war crimes during a visit to Yugoslav relatives more than a year ago. He was acquitted in Titograd March 29 but the Montenegro state prosecutor appealed to the supreme court.

External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald personally appealed to the Yugoslav government to let Bakich return to Canada. She said compassion should be shown the pensioner because of his age and deteriorating health.

Guardian appointed for unborn child

HALIFAX (CP) — A decision by a Nova Scotia family court to grant an unborn child a guardian could be a precedent-setting case in Canada, Arthur Foote, an expert in family law at Dalhousie University Law School, said Thursday.

The case involves a 19-year-old woman who was refused an abortion at a local hospital because her estranged husband threatened to seek an injunction to prevent the operation.

In addition, a member of the Nova Scotians United for Life, an anti-abortion group, received permission from the court to become the guardian for the unborn child. The group claimed the life of the child was endangered.

"It is the first case I know of within the Anglo-Commonwealth system where a child not yet born has had a guardian appointed on its behalf," Foote said in an interview. "The traditional approach is that a child has to be born before you can have any particular proceedings in relation to the child.

"A guardian is someone who is suppose to make all significant decisions about the child. If the guardian thinks the mother's lifestyle is detrimental to the health of the baby to be born, can the mother be put on a special diet?

"Given the traditional obligations of a guardian of a child, how does this guardian actually operate? It cannot bypass the mother."

Foote said he believes the Nova Scotia court went beyond its jurisdiction in appointing the guardian.

A family court has only such jurisdiction as conferred on it by legislation, he said. So unless you can find the authority in the legislation, you cannot do it.

A similiar request in Ontario was refused about two weeks ago by the Ontario Supreme Court, Foote said.

Foote said it it high time that law reform commissions study this kind of problem and decide how to deal with it.

Clark to name Jerome speaker

Times News Service

OTTAWA — James Jerome will be called on to serve as speaker of the house of Commons in the 31st parliament, informed sources said Thursday.

Prior to departing as the head of a parliamentary delegation to China, Jerome was sounded out as to his availability for the post.

He apparently indicated his readiness to serve again and his name will be placed before the Commons by Prime Minister Clark. He is due back this weekend from China.

He was elected speaker of the house at the start of the 30th parliament in September, 1974. He served the house with an impartiality that gained the grudging admiration of the Conservatives and other members on the opposition side while Liberals on the government side sometimes quarrelled with his rulings.

Numbers played a key role in the decision to approach him with the offer to serve again as speaker of the house. With the death of John Diefenbaker the number of Progressive Conservative supporters has been reduced to 135 in the Commons. There are 113 Liberals, 26 New Democratic Party members and six Social Credit. There are two vacancies.

Leading a minority government in the house Clark was naturally reluctant to name a Progressive Conservative to the position of speaker as that would reduce the number of his supporters.

Ontario allows bilingual trials

TORONTO (CP) — In what an Ontario cabinet minister called one of the most significant developments in the province's administration of justice, the government has given persons charged with a criminal offence the right to trial by a bilingual judge or jury.

Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said courts will be allowed to transfer criminal cases after Dec. 31 to areas where bilingual jurors are available. The French-language service follows Criminal Code changes passed last year in Ottawa.

Ontario's health-care system also is going bilingual. Health Minister Dennis Timbrell announced Thursday in Sudbury that the Ontario government has identified areas where bilingual services in health care will have priority because of the large numbers of French-speaking residents.

Neither McMurtry nor Timbrell could say how much the bilingual policies will cost, but Timbrell said funds will be availables for hospitals to improve French-language services.

Criminal Code amendments will permit witnesses to testify in either language before a bilingual judge or jury. And translating facilities will be available if the accused is not bilingual.

Ontario will join New Brunswick as the only other province where these rights have been adopted. And in New Brunswick, the only province to proclaim itself bilingual, people already had the right to be tried in either official language.

In Quebec, English-speaking residents have had trials in English since Confederation, but that province has not yet adopted the Criminal Code amendments.

Pollution control device scrapped for refinery

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Gulf Canada oil refinery in this southern Interior city has scrapped plans to install a pollution control device, and local environmental groups are angry about the decision.

Refinery manager Ross Davidson said Thursday the plant does not have high enough sulphur dioxide emissions to justify a "scrubber". The company plans to refine Alberta crude oil, which has a low sulphur content, from November to April, he said.

Originally, the provincial Pollution Control Branch had required installation of the sulphur dioxide scrubber.

But David Reiter, a spokesman for the Shuswap-Thompson River Research and Development Association, says the scrubber system is necessary in Kamloops. He said the Gulf refinery is the only one in Canada without a scrubber.

B.C. Briefs

N-plant up to feds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett, Environment Minister Rafe Mair and Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said Thursday that B.C. has no business intervening in a proposed nuclear plant in Sedro Woolley, Wash.

They said it is up to the federal government to deal with the proposal and B.C. has already expressed its concern to Ottawa.

Bennett said he will discuss the plants with Prime Minister Clark when they meet here today.

Pulp mill expands

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. has announced it will start construction immediately on a third $150 million newsprint machine and thermomechanical pulp mill at its Crofton mill.

Company president Ken Benson said Thursday the new facility, scheduled for completion in mid-1982, is being added because of the recent high demand for newsprint in Canada and the U.S.

Meetings planned

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said Thursday he will hold four more public meetings, in Campbell River, Fort St. John, Queen Charlotte City and Prince Rupert, to give residents a chance to voice their concerns about the environment.

Sewage increase

PRINCETON (CP) — The local health board has voted to support an application that could initially increase the amount of sewage dumped in Lake Okanagan, despite the objections of a health officer.

The South Okanagan-Similkameen Union board of health voted 9-2 to support the City of Kelowna's application to double output from it sewage treatment plant.

The increase is to allow implementation of Barden Pho biological sewage treatment, a system which calls for effluent to be processed and sprayed on crops for irrigation and fertilization. That would decrease the amount of sewage dumped in the lake.

New stadium curve

RICHMOND (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett has thrown a curve ball into Vancouver's stadium debate, further confusing an already confused issue.

When asked if baseball should be included in plans for a new stadium, the premier said the stadium should be built for future as well as present needs and that baseball should be among the future considerations.

Seabus pact inked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Employees on the Seabus ferry between Vancouver and North Vancouver have signed their first collective agreement.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, which represents the 65 workers, will receive a 20.2-per-cent wage increase over two years from last April 1.

Engine blamed

BARRIERE (CP) — A helicopter crash which killed one person near this southern Interior community on Monday was caused by engine failure, RCMP said Thursday.

Orest D. Parsey, 45, a Barriere forest ranger, died when the Bell helicopter, which was being leased by the British Columbia Forest Service, crashed in the bush in a narrow valley.

"HOW 'BOUT TRADIN' THESE FOR SOMETHIN' I CAN TALK TO?"

Contract Bridge — B. Jay Becker

You are South and the bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
1 ♢	Dble	1 ♠	Pass
Pass	?

1. ♠A7 ♡KQ986 ♢ K3 ♣ AK54
2. ♠KJ73 ♡A85 ♢ Q94 ♣ AJ2
3. ♠K82 ♡AK8 ♢6 ♣AKQ943
4. ♠AQ3 ♡K92 ♢ AJ8 ♣ KQJ5

1. Double. This is a takeout double, just as the previous one was. Basically, your double asks partner to bid hearts or clubs. At the same time, the second double not only affirms the soundness of the first one but also tells partner to expect values beyond those originally implied.

A two heart bid, instead of a second double, would be wrong on two counts. First, it would understate your actual values. Second, it could also result in winding up in the wrong suit, hearts, instead of the right suit, clubs. The best way to find the right contract is to double again and let partner choose the suit.

2. Pass. You have no extra values beyond those already indicated, and you should therefore pass one spade. Your partner had a chance to bid voluntarily over one spade and turned it down. If you were to bid one notrump at this stage, instead of passing, you'd be looking for trouble. Besides, West may have a problem making one spade, since he will be playing the hand in your best suit.

3. Three clubs. This bid, in conjunction with your earlier double, indicates pretty much the values you have. It shows that your hand was not only too good for a two club bid on the previous round, but also too good for a two club bid now, even after having doubled.

Three clubs urges North to bid three notrump with a diamond stopper and very little more. You've guaranteed a strong club suit and an excellent all-around hand.

4. One notrump. This may seem to be a gross underbid, holding 20 high-card points, but you must face the realities of the situation. The chance of finding your partner with 6 or more points is almost nil; he is much more likely to have 2 or 3 points. You should therefore discount the high-card values you're looking at and try to reach the safest part score contract possible.

Note that in the present case, as contrasted with the first question, you don't double for takeout a second time. This is because your distribution here is notrump-oriented rather than suit-oriented.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, September 22, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Go slow, maintain low profile. Defer to judgment of one close to you. Play waiting game, plant seeds for future use. Check legal documents. You may have some updating to do. Taurus, Aquarius, Scorpio persons play key roles in your scenario.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Obtain valuable hint by reading Aries message. Avoid sensationalism, maintain moderate pace. Accent on work ethic, health of pets, dependents and your knowledge of nutrition. Change occurs which could lead to writing and travel. The number 5 figures prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with outlet for creative abilities, speculation and love. You gain moral support from family member. One with melodious voice makes deep impression on you. Enjoy flattery, but don't fall overboard.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Long-standing wish can be fulfilled. Key is to perfect techniques, define terms and avoid self-deception. Pisces, Virgo individuals play key roles. Secret is revealed and you prove to be beneficiary. You'll be more secure at home-base.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Utilize your own ideas, concepts. Remember that a committee can plan a horse and end up with a camel. You have opportunity now to strike pay dirt. Key is to persist, to establish "territorial rights." Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get rid of financial burden. Money picture will be brighter as result. Personal appeal soars; you'll obtain better distribution and display of product. Aries, Libra individuals play key roles in your scenario. Invest in your own talents.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle portends new starts in new directions, more independence and rewards for originality. You get to heart of matters and could fall madly in love. Leo helps show the way. Recent "ailment" dissipates. Vitality makes a stunning comeback.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ability to keep a secret is put to test. Be discreet, maintain aura of mystery. Some may accuse you of being a "magician." You might be asked to be a media representative for special club, group, organization. Aquarian figures prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Another Sagittarian aids in "putting over" a special project. Potential expands as you win friends and influence people. Recent business investment is due to pay dividends. Know it, be confident and ignore one who sings the blues. The number 3 figures prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Opposition proves to be a "paper tiger." You achieve goal despite obstacles, envious people and complicated legal procedures. You'll gain support of those occupying power base. Leo, Aquarius, Scorpio individuals lead your personal cheering section.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Gain indicated through writing, travel, creative endeavors and special relationship with member of opposite sex. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles. You can now bridge distance and language barriers. You become involved in import-export activity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Accent on mystery, financial status of partner or mate and "peculiar" involvement with what many might consider the occult. Domestic situation improves. Family member makes major concession. Be a gracious winner. Avoid saying, "I told you so."

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Marge and Bill live a quarter of the way along the straight highway from Pitt to Cherry. Driving over to Ted's place eighteen kilometres north of their home they found the old bridge was down."

"So we turn back and go via Cherry," Marge declared. "That's only twelve kilometres from Ted."

"Sure, or via Pitt," Bill replied. "Same total distance either way, and they're all good straight roads."

They were also exact numbers of kilometres, so how far was Ted's place from Pitt?

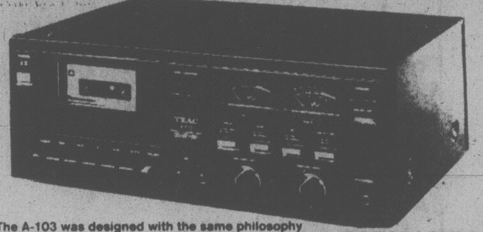
JVC KD-10 STEREO CASSETTE DECK

The KD-10 dolby cassette deck offers a new level of performance. No other competing dolby deck has peak-reading LED's that guarantee a distortion-free recording every time. The KD-10 is audibly clearer than other decks at the price because of a real response of 40 to 15,000 and high S/N Ratio of 62 dB. Plus separate right/left input controls, digital counter, Bias-EQ TAPE SELECTION, AND JVC durability.

SPECTACULAR PRICE 249⁹⁵

TEAC A-103 CASSETTE DECK



The A-103 was designed with the same philosophy and advanced technology developed for more expensive models. For example, its transport mechanism is the same type as that employed on the A-303. It also incorporates an FG servo-controlled DC motor for superior stability and accuracy. The Dolby noise reduction system featured on the A-103 is behind its component-level sound, found on few other decks in this price range.

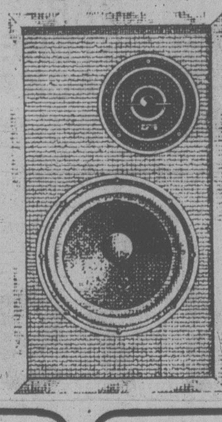
EPI

NOTE:
THE LINEAR SOUND OF EPI

EPI builds each model to utilize sound engineering principles that will stand up over the years. Flat Amplitude — that-is, the speaker should produce no more or no less sound than is put into it. Good Dispersion—the ability to radiate sound evenly in all directions so as to fill up the entire listening area. Transient Response—the speaker's ability to reproduce dramatic changes in the sound level produced by the sound source, accurately and with a minimum of time delay. Low Distortion—a speaker system should do nothing to reinforce harmonics when they are present in a musical sound or create them when they are not. Wide bandwidth—the greater the bandwidth, the more low and high frequency information the system is capable of reproducing. By concentrating on these fundamental principles of sound EPI gets sound reproduction that is total, accurate and linear. Result: The Linear sound of EPI.



$150 Worth of Sound

EPI 100 ONLY 99⁹⁵ ea

The EPI 100 has become the industry standard for bookshelf loudspeakers. Leading consumer and audiophile publications have consistently given the EPI 100 their top ratings. It does everything you want a loudspeaker to do, and it does it all in a compact cabinet! The EPI 100 offers EPI's celebrated Linear Sound: a pure, uncoloured, natural sound from top to bottom. With no artificial boosting of the bass to impress the innocent. And all the nuances at the treble end that, on most speakers, just fade away. The Model 100 doesn't just deliver the Linear sound of speakers' off-axis dispersion is down an average of only 3db. And, unlike nearly every other speaker, you can listen for hours to the EPI 100 without suffering listening fatigue. The reason is EPI's "minimum distortion" — both harmonic and intermodulation. With its excellent dispersion and EPI's Linear Sound, we'd say the EPI 100 is clearly the finest speaker you can get for the money.

JBL'S NEW L150:
ITS BOTTOM PUTS IT ON TOP

The L150, a short-tower, floor-standing loudspeaker system produces bass with depth, power and transparency that comes incredibly close to a live performance.

A completely new 12" driver was created for the L150. And there's even more to the L150's bottom — a 12" passive radiator. We use it to replace a large volume of air and contribute to the production of true, deep bass. Bass without boom. Hear it today!

'Lip service' on land: prof

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit government is paying lip service to saving agricultural land while doing exactly the opposite, says a spokesman for the British Columbia Institute of Agrologists.

"We're pretty concerned about what's happening now," Art Bomke, chairman of the institute's land use committee, said Thursday.

He said large amounts of prime agricultural are being quietly removed from the agricultural land reserve as part of a government effort to weaken the B.C. Land Commission.

Bomke criticized a 1977 change in the Agricultural Land Commission Act which allows the environment and land use committee to hear appeals of land commission decisions against removing land from the reserve. Appeals to the committee must be approved by Environment Minister Rafe Mair.

Bomke, a soil science professor at the University of B.C., said he is especially concerned about an application to remove 334 acres of land in Richmond from the reserve. Mair has allowed the application to go to the committee on an appeal.

"If this land goes out of the reserve, then there's no justification for keeping any land in Richmond in the land reserve."

Gilmore Estates Ltd. is applying to remove the land from the reserve to allow the development of an industrial park and associated residential and commercial facilities.

As land is removed from the reserve, there is greater pressure on the land that remains, said Bomke.

"It would be hard to justify having your land in the reserve if the land across the street has just been removed."

Bomke said Mair has not yet appointed a land commission chairman to replace Gary Runka who stepped down at the end of 1978. That proves the land commission is being ignored, he said.

Cooking oil labels not strictly kosher

MONTREAL (CP) — The Jewish Community Council of Montreal has won an injunction to prevent the sale of cooking oil distributed by a firm whose kosher labelling was not authorized.

Lawyer Louis Orenstein said day it was the first time in Quebec that a religious supervisory body had resorted to the courts to enforce the kashruth, or Jewish dietary laws.

Deaths and funerals

305 DEATHS and FUNERALS

GILSTRAP — On September 16, 1979, John William Ralph Gilstrap, aged 67 years of 1598 Wilmot Place. He is survived by his wife, Isabel; brother, Bruce; sisters, Edith Scott or Victoria and Helen Bennett of Comox; several nieces and nephews. Mr. Gilstrap served as a male nurse at Eric Martin Institute for several years.

Private cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Donations if desired, may be made to Canadian Cancer Society, 857 Caledonia Avenue. Hayward's Thomson and Irving in care of arrangements.

NICHOLS — On September 19, 1979, Lionel Arthur Nichols aged 66 years of 548 Dallas Road, born in Vancouver and a resident of Victoria since 1957. He is survived by his loving wife, Jean; daughter, Mrs. R. L. (Bev) Swift in Australia; three grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Agnes Nichols of Vancouver and brother, Kenneth G. Nichols of Vancouver. He was manager of C.P. Telecommunications in Victoria until his retirement in 1975. He was a Past Master of Maple Leaf Lodge, AF & AM No. 74, B.C.R. and a member of Vancouver Chapter No. 2, O.E.S.

Private Cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined, donations, if desired, may be made to the O.E.S. Cancer Dressing Station care of Mrs. Myrtle A. Thomas, Sec'y, 3691 West 36th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C. V6N 2S3). McCall's.

SWAIN — Elizabeth Blanche, at the Etobicoke General Hospital, on Thursday, September 20, 1979. Elizabeth Blanche Swain, formerly of 1139 Hillside Avenue, Victoria, B.C. Dear sister of L. K. Kerton, of Somerset, England; dear friend of Pearl Crane of Rexdale.

A private service was held at Riverside Crematorium Chapel, Toronto, on Friday, September 21, 1979. Cremation.

309 IN MEMORIAM

EVELEIGH — Freda Helene, in loving memory of our mom and grandmother who passed away September 21, 1973. And our dad on September 13, 1972.

Dear mom, you are peacefully sleeping, resting at last.
The worlds weary troubles and trials are past,
you suffered in silence, in patience you bore,
Till God called you home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed — Diane, Bob, Heidi, Scott and Graeme Cooper.

NOBLE — In loving memory of Danny Noble, who passed away September 19, 1972.

"He had a nature you could not help loving
And to those who knew and loved him,
His memory will never grow old.

TURNEY — In memory of our loving father and husband, Robert L. Turney.

Our family chain has been broken
A link from it's chain stolen
But in our hearts you are there to stay.
If we could have one wish come true, to be,
See and talk to you
But God took you at his command.
One day we will all be on his demand.
—Always remembered by loving wife and four children.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Businessmen want casinos in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — An organization representing 1,000 Quebec businessmen has asked Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau to allow two casinos to be opened near Montreal and Quebec City by the summer of 1981 to help offset the province's tourist deficit, which stood at $207 million in 1977. The Council of Quebec Businessmen also says in a letter to Parizeau that the casinos should be operated by the private sector, and not the government.

Brilliant April blooms from dry anemone 'chips'

GARDENING

Hilda Beastall

Just at this time when bulbs for spring flowering are seen in garden centre displays, one should also be able to find tubers of the Anemone coronaria.

A small garden area in sunshine, planted during fall with even 25 tubers will result in several dozens of brilliantly colored flowers next April and May.

As well as a long-lasting display for the garden, the blooms last well when cut for bowls in the home.

The single poppy-flowered anemone is the strain called de Caen, from the fields of France where they were raised for export. If you like double flowers, choose the St. Brigid strain.

Unlike bulbs and some tubers, these anemone tubers come to no harm if planting is delayed; they do not seem to dry out. When you buy them they look like pieces of dry bark, or a plug of Swedish tobacco, but they are alive. They have a top side where leaves and flowers will emerge, and a bottom side which produces roots.

Don't worry if you cannot decide which side is up — just plant the tubers on edge. The knobby side is up; the smooth or rounded side is down.

The finely cut leaves are attractive as they begin to show through the soil by October if tubers are in the ground this weekend. The more leaves, the better the flower crop. Unlike true bulbs such as narcissus, the anemone tuber does not contain embryo flowers. But it has the ability to use its leaves in cool weather for production of blooms in late spring sunshine and warmth.

If not familiar with these single de Caen anemones, you will be amazed at the fine display of color. The flowers are like clean-cut poppies on four- or five-inch stems, in navy, scarlet and white.

Others are in tones of pink, purple and mauve. There are no yellows. The contrasting central boss of black stamens are another feature of each flower.

Anemones of all kinds belong to the buttercup family as do Peonies, Hellebores (Christmas-rose), Aquilegias and Clematises. The chief requirement for all these familiar garden plants is a deeply prepared, rich, moist growing soil. It must be free draining in our wet winters but moisture retentive in our dry summers.

Humus is the answer. Rough compost at the bottom of the planting area, and finer humus in the top six inches mixed with the existing soil.

When the lowest soil has been prepared, lay out the tubers about six inches apart. Not in rows, but in irregular groupings. If doubtful of up sides and down sides, plant on edge but make some attempt at deciding the right way with most tubers, for growth will come through sooner. You get the idea of the knobby side being the "growth bud" side as you look at the tubers.

Cover with two to three inches of humus or leafy compost soil and mark out with stakes or string to remind you where they are.

In a cold northeast winter wind, evergreen or densely twiggy tree or shrub prunings will filter the cold if put firmly into the soil on the northeast side of the bed.

If a particularly hard frost or cold spell is forecast, lay a light branch or two of evergreen over the entire bed; or a loose mulch of dry straw or long grass, kept under cover from the fall garden, will prevent damage. A snow covering before freezing is to be preferred to a hard cold spell when soft growth is just above ground. But on the whole, these anemones come through our winters in good shape and give their wonderful color display as a boost in April and May.

Principal's first day a blast

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Thompson wasn't expecting his first day as principal of Rosemont High School to be an easy one, but it turned out to be a bit more than he had bargained for Thursday.

Minutes after he had sat down behind his desk, a teacher rushed in and reported that a jar of potentially-explosive crystallized picric acid had been found in a storage room next to the school's chemistry lab.

But police quickly reassured him there was little danger of an explosion "as long as they don't shake or drop the jar, or try to open it."

Cholera hits 400

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — At least 400 cases of cholera were reported in the Hindu holy city of Varanasi and as many as 29 people may have died from the disease in the last week.

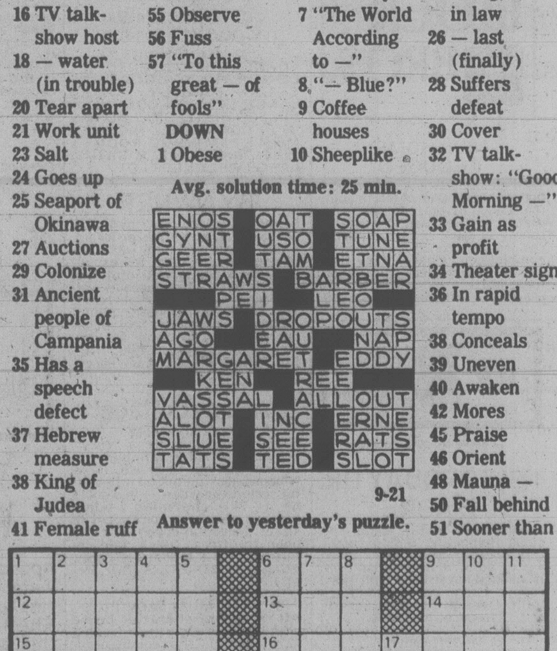
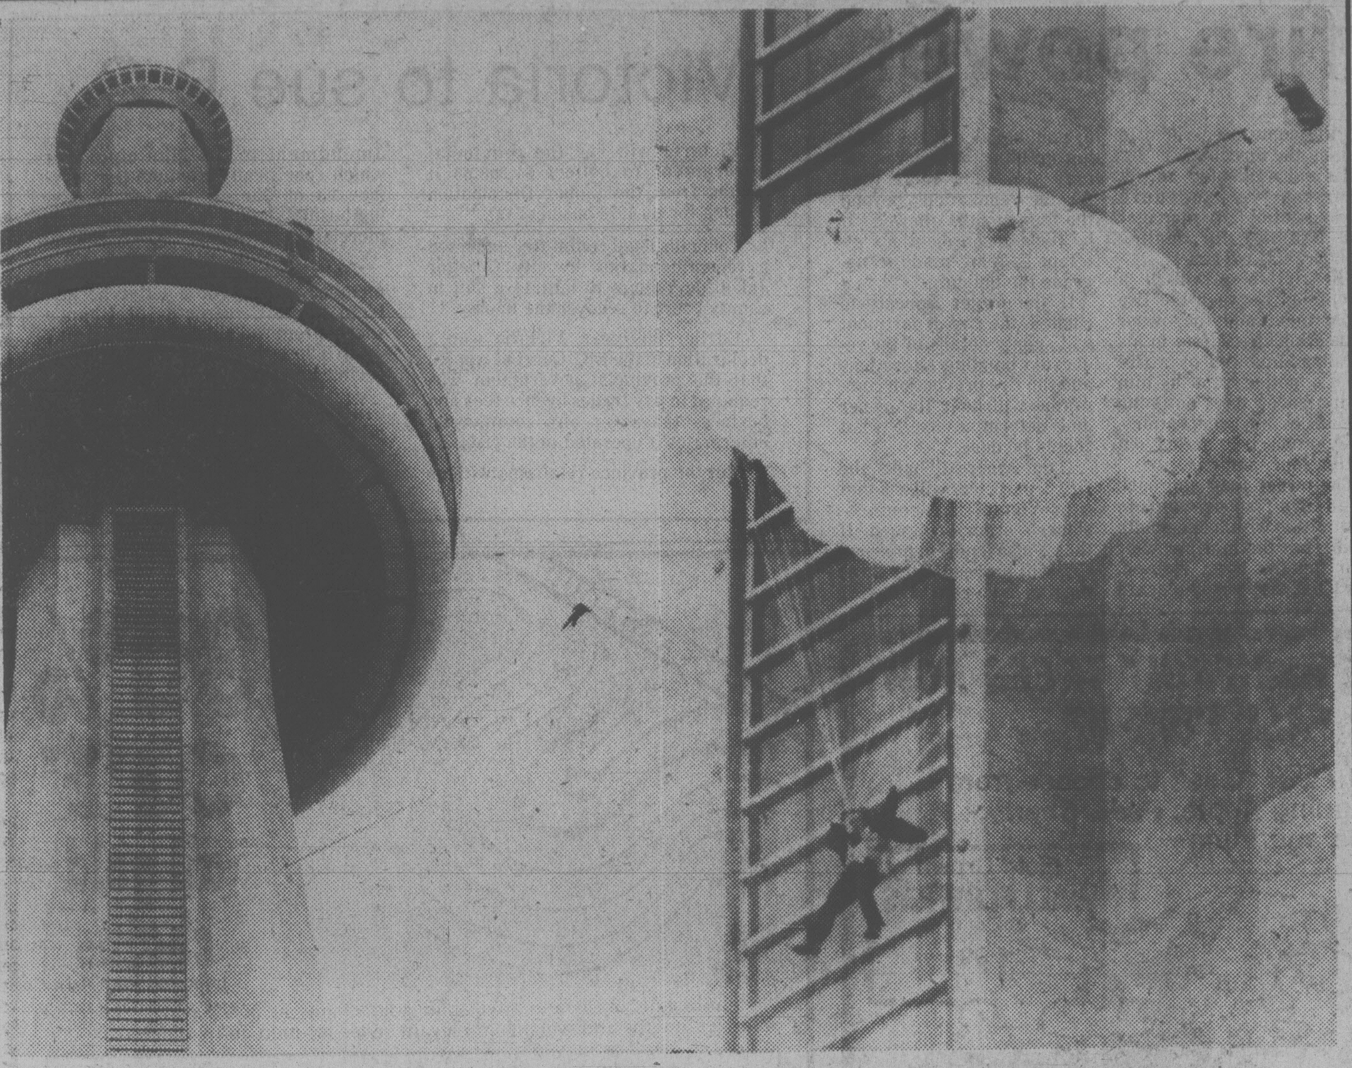
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.





So you think YOU'RE jumpy!

More Viet refugees

Seven more Vietnamese refugees arrived in Victoria late Thursday night.

The parishioners of the Roman Catholic Our Lady of the Rosary Church immediately took three of the new Canadians to a Chinese restaurant.

They learned that Mrs. Bing Jung, 53, and her sons Folk, 27, and On, 20, had been separated from the father, one daughter and one other son when they took to the boats.

The boat was too crowded to take all of them.

Father Willard O'Brien said today they are going to try to bring the rest of the family here but the chances are questionable.

He said one of the boys had painted tools in their country and the other had worked in a plastic factory. They were forced to leave because of their political views.

For the past week, 25 parishioners have been redecorating a home on Metchosin Road for the refugees.

"They're very fine, very polite people and they're very happy to be here," said O'Brien.

The four other new refugees were sponsored by the St. Mary's Anglican Church at Metchosin. The entire parish of 125 is involved in the project.

They speak Vietnamese and Cantonese, but no English.

Dockside fires minor

Two dockside fires in Greater Victoria Thursday resulted in only minor damages.

Cause of the blaze, which broke out at 3:45 p.m. was a burner which ignited greased timbers.

Damage was slight.

Earlier crew of the Jala Godavari, loading pulp at Ogden Point, extinguished a fire estimated at $2,000 in the engine room of the 162-metre freighter at 10:43 a.m.

Rib-nudging launch for 50th

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A 50th anniversary probably doesn't make Victoria Theatre Guild the oldest consistently operative amateur theatre society in Canada.

But the guild, being among the few to have survived half a century of the customary crises and problems — and being one of the few in Canada to own its own theatre — has a right to jubilation.

It's in the proper spirit then that the directors have proclaimed "A solid-gold season of comedy."

This was appropriately launched Thursday at Langham Court with the opening of Neil Simon's The Sunshine Boys.

This compact comedy escapes from the routine male-female orientation to revolve about the situation of two mutually antagonistic old men who had once been the partners in a famous vaudeville comedy team. The nephew of one of them is the self-appointed and mostly outclassed deus ex machina.

As good comedy writing so often does, this is a play that has an element of poignancy. Its a nudge in the ribs that now and then sends a tremor to the heart.

Directed by Helen Smith, in general it is well done.

The seedy hotel room on upper Broadway looks suitably decayed and quite believable. Sound effects are a bit disconcerting, particularly the telephone ring, much divorced from the actual position of the instrument. The amusing television business at the opening also would be more effective with more sound, especiallly on the commercial.

Jack Droy as Willie, one half of the team of Lewis and Clarke (The Sunshine Boys) gives one of the best performances in a long comedy career.

It is flawed now and then by some line fluffing and a dropped cue or two, but the portrait of an obstinate has-been nursing a 47-year grudge and the delusion that he is still active in show business, is well developed and convincing.

He and Robert Price as Al, the other half of the team — persistently described by Willie as "that bastard" — have escaped from acting mannerisms that one had come to expect from them. For the most part direction has also avoided the worst cliches of on-stage Jewishness.

Price is equally convincing and distinctive in his characterization. The play's poignancy echoes mainly in his comments about life in retirement and he handles it well. The teamwork between the two actors is, in its many best phases, tight, controlled and moves with good tempo and pace.

The wrangle as they reconstruct their medical sketch for a television crew in Act II is hilarious. It was so good that it made the slipshod ending to the scene, when the fine edge and focus went adrift, the more regrettable.

Willie's likeable and distracted nephew, Ben, is outstandingly done by Barry Grimshaw. Excellent pace, genuine feeling, technically smooth and disciplined, this is a performance of high competence.

A scattering of minor characters is handled adequately with a special bow to Hilary Wharf's sexy "nurse" and Penny Devlin's crisply defined real nurse. Bill John, Bernie Liberto, Michael Clapp are the others with Austin Scott as the off-stage announcer.

Ranger-station shutdown talk claimed smoke without fire

A forests ministry spokesman today denied that the ministry intends to eliminate at least half the ranger stations in the province.

Assistant Deputy Minister Ralph Robbins said reports to this effect are incorrect.

"It just isn't so," said Robbins.

Some employees within the forest service say a reorganization of the ministry, which has been under way for a year, will adversely affect their roles.

The terms ranger and ranger station will disappear as a result of efforts by the government to better describe new jobs and responsibilities.

What will happen, Robbins said, is that two or three ranger stations will be reorganized into one district with a district manager.

But the ranger stations will not be closed — they will remain in place and be renamed field offices.

Thus the 101 ranger districts will be reduced to fewer than 50, but most ranger stations will remain in place.

One logger claimed he was told most rangers are to be stripped of their present authority.

The logger said this could cause him problems.

"Without a local ranger or ranger station, I'm going to have to go a long way to get a decision."

In the past, he said whenever he had a problem regarding the permissibility of any activity on a logging site, he had only to phone the local station for advice.

In some cases permission for certain activities was often given over the phone and later confirmed by letter, but only because the ranger is familiar with his district and conditions affecting the area.

However, Robbins said today he doesn't think that's going to change, and in fact, under the new system, decision making in the field could be even better.

Robbins stressed that the reorganization will take more decision-making power out of Victoria and put it out into the districts.

"The district manager will have more authority and will be more responsible than under the old set-up."

The whole procedure is aimed at reorganizing the forestry ministry, and Robbins said the move was recommended by the royal commission on forestry headed by Dr. Peter Pearse.

The forests ministry has more than 3,000 employees in the six forest districts — Vancouver, Cariboo, Kamloops, Nelson, Prince George and Prince Rupert.

Alberta hopes for takeover of terminal

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is trying to engineer the takeover of Neptune Terminals in Vancouver, Economic Development Minister Hugh Horner says.

The consortium involved in the proposed takeover and expansion of the Neptune facility is "primarily composed of Alberta firms," he said. One aim is to improve movement of Alberta coal and suphur exports.

The consortium could count on a loan from the Heritage Savings Trust Fund, he added.

Theme is problems of 'special children'

A conference called Special Children — Special Needs will be held at the University of Victoria Saturday, Oct. 20 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The conference has been arranged by the Victoria Committee of the International Year of the Child.

During the workshops nine topics will be discussed:

Diagnostic treatment centres, services to the delinquent child, co-ordination of community services, children at risk (screening, identification and prevention), professional development, services to the educationally handicapped child, services to the emotionally handicapped child, the child in hospital and services to children with neuro-developmental problems.

The purpose of the conference is to establish a dialogue between parents of these children, professionals working with such children and the four main ministries who provide services to children.

Registrations, which must be made before Oct. 5, can be arranged through the Capital Regional District by phoning 388-4421, local 300. Registration cost is $10.

Among those at the conference will be Dr. Richard Goldbloom, professor of pediatrics at Dalhousie Medical School and physician-in-chief of the Isaac Walton Killam Hospital for Children in Halifax, N.S.; Dr. G.H. Bonham, senior assistant deputy minister, community health programs, ministry of health; John Noble, deputy minister of the ministry of human resources, and Brent Parfitt, head of the attorney-general's family and social services division.

City hangs on to fire power

Chief Eric Simmons went to city hall Thursday to request greater independence in forcing building owners to remove fire hazards, but council's fire prevention committee decided to retain some measure of political control.

The aldermen's main concern — which arose after the embarrassing exposure of the Union Club's fire hazards — was over placarding of buildings which the chief has determined are dangerous.

He said that in other municipalities in the capital region and B.C., the chief acts as assistant to the provincial fire commissioner and puts through his orders directly.

"The councils know nothing about it," he added.

Mayor Mike Young said Victoria is a special case because the fire safety upgrading program is now concentrating on older buildings where meeting the new construction codes will be difficult.

And if the owner has already started on the renovations, "why should he (the fire chief) post a notice that alarms the residents?"

The chief said he's concerned that council may intervene since a building owner can appeal a chief's notice to upgrade his building and council may amend the order.

"Council has the power in an appeal situation to say that nothing should be done and the building be left exactly as it is," said Simmons.

He was also prevented specifically by a council order two years ago from communicating to the B.C. fire commissioner what decisions council had made on such appeals. The mayor said this was academic as council decisions are public, but the committee voted to rescind the directive.

It finally adopted an administrative procedure worked out by city manager, Jim Bramley for dealing with fire hazard cases.

The first step will be a discussion between the fire department and the owner respecting fire safety in his building, followed by a fire chief's notice sent to him within seven days outlining the necessary renovations. They must be carried out within four months.

The owner may approach council's fire prevention committee within one month to discuss the matter. After two months have elapsed, the chief may post a placard or public notice in the building outlining the hazards. He may also allow more time for the renovations beyond the four months allowed "if he feels a conscientious attempt is being made to upgrade the building."

If the owner appeals to council, the fire department will supply details of the requested building alterations and the fire prevention committee will hear the owner and determine itself what should be done.

If the owner still balks, the fire department will ask that a provincial fire commissioner's order be issued. If that is also ignored, prosecution will proceed after three months have elapsed.

Victoria to sue B.C.

Victoria will sue the provincial government to collect $4,203.60 it claims from the Liquor Distribution Branch for its 1978 business tax.

Council's legal committee endorsed a recommendation by city solicitor Jakob de Villiers to initiate a suit in county court to recover the money.

Earlier this year, Victoria won a declaration in the B.C. Court of Appeal that the provincial government was required to pay trades licence fees and business taxes for any commercial enterprises it operated in the city.

But the province retaliated with an amendment to the Municipal Act which specifically exempts the province as of Jan. 1, 1979, from paying business taxes for any of its commercial corporations.

De Villiers gave the committee members a copy of a letter he had from the B.C. director of finance which promised that B.C. would pay up if it lost the court of appeal case earlier this year.

He said he wrote on April 30 reminding the province of the promise, and again on Sept. 5 but no cheque was forthcoming.

Insurance firm dumped

The Victoria brokers who have insured the city of Victoria for many years were replaced Thursday by the Vancouver agency of an international firm which offered to do the job at 35 per cent less.

Reed, Shaw, Stenhouse's bid of $52,421 a year was accepted Thursday by council's finance committee over three other higher bids.

It means a considerable saving in insurance costs. Ker and Stephenson Ltd., the local brokers who insured Victoria for years and won the first bidding round in 1976, are now paid $81,235 a year. This time they submitted the high bid of $59,922 to keep the city's business.

Others who bid were local companies — P.R. Brown and Sons Ltd. of Victoria at $59,546 and Falkins-McIntosh Inc. at $58,389. Harbord Insurance Co. of Victoria was also asked, but submitted instead a proposal to audit the city's insurance needs and wasn't considered.

The policies provided by the Reed, Shaw, Stenhouse will cover the city for $5 million general liability and $500,000 for damage due to errors and omissions, with $5,000 deductible per claim. They will also write fire coverage totalling $36,424,800 for city-owned buildings with a $10,000 deductible, and a $100,000 employee "dishonesty, disappearance and destruction" policy. The last item is a $1 million boiler insurance policy covering all city heating installations.

Similarly, according to a 1976 policy throwing open insurance and banking services to competition, the committee also approved sending out invitations to bid on banking services for the city for 1980.

Three years ago in the first such contest the Bank of Montreal, Victoria's banker since incorporation in 1862, lost out to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

A new wrinkle this year is extension of the tender offer to credit unions.

City won't appeal garbage ruling

Apartment owners will get a break on garbage collection as the result of a decision Thursday by Victoria city council's legal committee against appealing a recent B.C. Supreme Court decision striking down the city's garbage bylaw.

It decided to draft a new bylaw ending discrimination against apartment dwellers and establishing a new garbage utility which will see owners billed directly on their property tax statements for garbage pickup, perhaps as much as $50 a year, according to Mayor Mike Young.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie last month quashed the city's garbage bylaw because it refused to pick up more than two cans a week from apartment buildings, no matter how many occupants, while condominium dwellers in an identical type of building were each allowed two cans. The city maintained apartment blocks were commercial ventures run for the profit of the owners and they should pay for garbage service.

The garbage reorganization will mean apartment owners will now get the same service and save money. On the other hand, the city will have to spread the additional cost of apartment pickup over all other property owners.

City engineer John Sansom estimated in a letter submitted as evidence during the trial that to collect garbage from Victoria's 22,561 apartment units would cost an extra $679,507 a year — a significant addition to the $1.2 million now spent by Victoria. However, the mayor called this figure questionable.

Young's proposal to set up a garbage utility similar to the way water is distributed means a schedule of fees will be drawn up. Single-family homes and duplexes would pay one rate, apartments and condominiums another.

City solicitor Jacob de Villiers recommended against appealing the court decision, which was won by city apartment building owner Elsie Wiseman, as he thought there was only a 50 per cent chance of success.

Dear Abby:

A mother wrote complaining that her daughter preferred calling relatives long distance to thank them for Christmas, birthday, and graduation gifts rather than write thank-you notes. You said, "A letter is better, but a telephone call is better than nothing."

Well, I work for the telephone company, and more and more I am faced with the unpleasant task of disconnecting the telephone service of a parent or grandparent for non-payment of a large telephone bill because some child or grandchild has made long-distance calls all over the country without the slightest thought of the cost involved.

If a phone bill is not paid because of indiscriminate calling by irresponsible children (or adults), the responsible paying customers will end up paying the bill in higher monthly rates.

Doing My Job

Dear Doing:

Consider it done! Readers, did you get the message?

Dear Abby:

I'm in love with a super dude, but he has one very bad fault. Bad breath. Abby, you couldn't ask for a nicer guy, but this one fault is really hard to take — especially when we kiss. It's not just after he's eaten onions or garlic. It's all the time.

He's a business person who deals with the public, so I worry about what other people might think.

I keep thinking maybe he needs a dentist, but holy cow, the man is 33 and I hate to suggest it.

I have an idea he knows his breath is bad because he's always sucking on mints or chewing gum, but it doesn't help. Somebody should tell him. But who?

Chicken

Dear Chicken:

You! It would be an act of kindness. If a dentist can't help him, he should see a doctor. Chronic bad breath can be a symptom of a serious physical ailment, and masking it with breathfresheners, mints, mouthwashes or chewing gum is not a proper solution.

Dear Abby:

My husband wears a hearing aid, and when we're at a cocktail party he turns it off and sits in a corner all by himself. Many people think he's anti-social or snobbish, but it's not true. He says that when some folks (especially women) get a few drinks in them, they tend to laugh and shriek extra loud, and the sound, when amplified through his hearing aid, feels like a knife in his ear.

Abby, you would be doing people who wear hearing aids a big favor if you asked your readers to be a little more considerate.

Caring

Dear Caring:

I can ask, but I fear that my plea will fall on deaf ears.

Attention ouch! please ouch!

Physics classes, often equated with tedium, apathy and polite yawns, has now been endowed with a shot of Hollywood.

Professor Jearl Walker, 34, leaves students gasping as he dunks his hand in molten lead, lies on a bed of nails and swirls liquid nitrogen in his mouth.

Walker, speaking to a packed auditorium at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, says:

"The way to capture a student's attention is with a demonstration where there is a possibility the teacher will die."

He survives his own demonstrations thanks to the laws of physics.

The professor, who comes from Cleveland State University, puts on a show designed to display the everday reality of physics.

In good circus tradition, he makes certain his audience understands the dangers of what he is attempting and confides (truthfully) that he has been burned, frozen and stunned by tricks that failed.

After the lecture, he said, in an interview, that his colleagues sometime accuse him of sensationalizing science.

He replys "This captures people's attention and they remember it. It's something they'll tell their grandchildren . . .

"I think science is in bad need of some show business," he said.

He pretends to veer away from his first try at breaking the brick with his fist and then dramatically smashes it.

And while the audience laughs and applauds, it learns why it hurts when the brick doesn't break. He attributes the pain to the vibration of the brick — part of the Leidenfrost effect.

The Leidenfrost effect also explains why drops of water dance on a hot skillet before evaporating and how a physicist can get away with sticking his fingers in molten lead or gargling with a fluid 200 degrees below zero.

In each case, a thin layer of vapor forms to insulate the hot surface from the cold one. Walker wets his fingers before dunking them in the lead, protecting them by a layer of steam.

When he takes the liquid nitrogen into his mouth, a bit of it vaporizes and coats his mouth and throat.

The nails don't penetrate his skin because the load (two volunteers from the audience plus his own weight) spreads over about 100 nail points; not quite enough to push the points through his skin.

It doesn't feel good, he says, but he survives.

However, there have been some outstanding failures and Walker cites the time a bit of hot lead got underneath a finger nail. He says he grinned and pretended nothing happened.

Applying the Leidenfrost effect again, often he walks over red hot stones. Sweat on the soles of his feet evaporate and protects them.

It worked beautifully, he says, until he got so confident that his feet no longer sweated. That demonstration ended in the infirmary.

Walker says a student named Sharon started him on what he calls the Flying Circus of Physics. He says Sharon demanded to know how physics was relevant to her life.

He said he was stuck for the moment. But he started to collect examples (enough eventually to fill a book) and think up his attention-grabbing demonstrations.

Many want to build with your brics

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Remember that warm feeling when Bill Bennett offered you your very own piece of B.C.?

Remember the excitement you felt when word began circulating about phenomenal increases in value, even before they went on the market?

You've got them, and the word is now that shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. are up in value from $6 to eight.

Ah, yes. A warm feeling. Alas, your BCRIC holdings could leave you covered with great gobs of guilt.

It seems there are a few groups out there who want your shares.

And since they didn't cost you anything why not pop them in the mail and help out some worthwhile charity?

Who are these groups, these faceless felons who would fleece you of your share in the future?

And there's a couple that has decided to personally conduct a campaign to raise funds for badly-needed equipment for Vancouver General Hospital's acute care nursery.

Less likely to exert the same emotional appeal as afflicted children, however, are such groups as the Vancouver Status of Women (for a women's center); the Recycling Council of B.C. Society (to carry on its educational work); the Salt Spring Island Library Association (for their building fund); the United Native Nation in Merritt (after all, the B.C. resources in question were all theirs to begin with, remember?); the Capitol Theatre Society in Nelson (to renovate the old theatre); the Committee to Save Sidney Island (what else?); and the Sierra Club (they wanted at least 100 shares registered in the club's name, thus giving it a voice at the annual shareholders' meetings).

The helpful people over at BCRIC who keep track of such things (but who hadn't heard about a couple of groups that have sent press releases to the Times) say they've also had inquiries from some churches about the permissibility of asking for the shares. Keep your eye on your friendly neighborhood pulpit, folks; they'd like a slice of B.C.'s future, too.

No, it's not easy maintaining one's cynical stance on this one. Some groups are easy to ignore, but others exert a strong emotional appeal. Opposing their requests is second on the universal no-no list, coming right after "Attacking motherhood."

But on this one, I'm standing firm. My shares and my children's shares, (and my wife is also adamant on the point) stay with us. Our little piece of B.C. stays with us, ever growing, ever a reminder of our stake in the province's future.

Why, years from now, people will look at us with envy. "You must have been the only people in the province to keep them. How could you have been so stingy?"

Bah. Humbug. It was easy.

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

Our 4-year-old daughter tyrannizes the whole family. I'm sure it's because my husband lets her get away with murder because she is so darling to look at. I know we're heading for trouble, but I don't know how to handle it.

Mrs. J.H.D.

Dear Mrs. D.:

When one recognizes the existence of a problem, the first major step is taken for its solution. You did not mention whether or not you, too, have fallen into the same trap as your husband in overindulging your daughter. At the age of 4, I should venture a guess that you and your husband are already more than three years overdo in establishing the proper approach to your child's behavior.

If there is any discrepancy in your attitudes, beware. For young children, even toddlers, have a built-in radar system which quickly picks up parental differences. Many of them have a charming, but diabolical, brilliance in recognizing when they have obtained the upper hand with one parent. That's when the tyranny starts.

Not long ago, there was an active intellectual and psychological battle between the defenders of permissiveness and those who believed in establishing firm limits. Adherents of permissiveness had their day, with results that were not too gratifying. More and more, the accepted attitude has shifted to set firmer rules of behavior for children.

It is undeniable that a child's security stems as much from the rules that are set down for him as it does from the parental love that he needs so much. It takes considerable effort and parental co-operation to realign a child's behavior when once the tyrannical dominance in the family has started. You might do well, even at your child's young age, to get proper psychological guidance to help you in your endeavors. You owe this to yourself and to your child.

I notice that I get hoarse at the beginning of my menstrual period. Everybody tells me I'm nuts. Do you think so?

Miss B.T.

Dear Miss T.:

No, indeed, I do not believe you are "nuts." In fact, you have made an observation that is well recognized by throat specialists. Sometimes the vocal cords become temporarily swollen during the menstrual period. The explanation might be that there is a general retention of fluids in some women during this phase.

Do you smoke? That, too, might be a factor.

Shades of need

He's sitting under a tree eating lunch when he sees some people go by.

"Hi. Hi. Who are you?" he calls out.

Later they want to interview him.

"How do you like it here in the workshop?"

"It's fine."

"What do you learn here?"

"I learn to make a lot of things."

"What are the people like?"

"Okay."

It's not much of an interview but it's clear that he has a sort of benign outlook on the world.

Dennis is 21 years old. When he was born, he suffered irreparable brain damage. He has never had any formal schooling.

Now he gets up every morning and takes the bus from Esquimalt to the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped workshop at 3861 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

It's not far, but he had to go to school to learn how to do it.

One day a week he goes to the Bank of Nova Scotia at Hillside and Douglas, where he has a job as a janitor. This fall that may turn into two or three days a week. He got the job through the workshop.

Dennis' story is a success story. Workshop manager George Hudson says its hard to get jobs for people like Dennis with the economic situation so bad. But that's the goal at the workshop.

Dennis is one of 65 people who are hoping to learn enough in the workshop to be able to live in this complicated difficult world.

This year for the first time, Dennis and friends planted a garden. At first they weren't sure what they were doing, digging around in the ground. But now they have rows and rows of bright flowers. They realise now, with pride, that they planted them.

They make up to $40 a day selling the flowers to anyone who can't have a garden of their own.

Next year they'll have a greenhouse and a retail store for their wood products.

This summer several of the gardeners got work as helpers, "out in the community where they belong", as Hudson says.

Hudson thinks that there is a great need in Victoria for gardener's helpers, people who can do the hard painstaking work that retired gardeners might not be able to handle.

These people are being trained to do that work.

The old Sentinel School is bright and airy, as uninstitutional as it could be.

The halls are lined with pale cedar benches, colorful planters filled with flowers from the garden, toys, lamps, and ceramics.

They have all been made by the young adults in the workshop.

An elegant lamp, which will sell for $20 or $30, is made of slats of wood around a base. It is carefully sanded, beautifully finished, and made to Canadian Safety Association standards.

There is a three by six foot pale blonde B.C. fir table with a top of flowered ceramic tiles. Like everything there, it is beautifully crafted.

Hudson says there is deliberately no mention of the word handicapped.

" We want the products to sell on their own merits, not from compassion.

"These people are no different than anyone else. They all have aspirations, hopes, inherent skills. They want to be treated as normal people."

The $33,000 they will receive — if the campaign is successful — covers about 20 per cent of the operating cost of the workshop. Another 60 per cent comes from the government and the rest is made up by the ladies' auxillary, bazaars, and bequests.

Hudson says:

"The United Way donation is the difference between bankruptcy and breaking even. That's the real lifesaver of the whole thing. It's a difficult financial tightrope we walk."

Approximately three per cent of the population is born retarded or with irreversable brain defects. The causes are accident, alcohol, drugs.

People like Dennis do not have the capacity to think, so much as the capacity to feel. Dennis feels he lives in a benign world.

Dear Dr. Levine:

I'm a 14-year-old girl. My parents have been divorced since I was 3. I have lived with my mother since the divorce and used to see my father very often until my mother and I moved to Toronto about two years ago.

I want to move back to where my father lives because I miss him very much. The problem is I am afraid to approach either parent about it. I don't want my mother to think I don't love her. Could you please help me?

Answer: You are presenting a very sensitive problem area, that is becoming more common because of the rapidly accelerating divorce rate. In your case, (each is unique), you haven't lived with your father for 11 years, and now you decide that you want to move back. Let me ask you some questions which will highlight some of the complexities of this kind of problem.

Does your mother have legal custody? Why?

Does your father want you back?

Is your father remarried? Does his wife (or lover, or children) want you there full-time?

Are you and your mom not getting along?

Won't you miss your mother if you move away to your dad's city?

How far apart do you now live?

Can anything be done so that you can visit your father more frequently?

Only you and your parents know the answers to these questions. If, after giving the whole subject a great deal of thought, you are still adamant about wanting this change, then you have little choice but to broach the subject with your mother. You are probably right: She will be hurt and confused. You will have to try to reassure her about your love for her, and the whole decision will take much time, energy, discussion and certainly involvement of your father.

I hope that you do the "right" thing (for you). I've known many young people who have made the switch expecting an idyllic existence. Unfortunately it seldom works that way. Just give it a lot of thought.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am a 15-year-old and have one problem no one will talk to me about. I'm adopted. When I ask my parents about who I really am they get upset and sometimes they get angry. They got me when I was a baby and say they don't know who I am. I don't believe them because I must have been somebody before. I told them I want to see my real family because maybe I have a brother. They don't understand me.

My mom cries and my dad gets mad and they say I don't love them, but I do. I told them I don't want to leave them but just want to be friends with my real family.

It's not fair because everyone else knows who they are. Why am I nobody?

Answer: I don't think anything is wrong with you. I think the questions you are asking, and the fact that you want to know about your natural parents, are perfectly normal. I believe you when you say you love your adopted parents, but I can also understand that loving them does not mean that you don't want to know about your natural parents.

Because your adopted parents love you, they may feel a little frightened that they might lose you if you found your natural parents.

It is complicated both for you and your adopted parents at this time when you want to know about your "roots."

It is important for all of you to have an opportunity to discuss your questions. If your parents are not comfortable doing this, I suggest you talk with a worker at the Children's Aid Society. The society does a great deal of adoption work and the worker would understand how you and your parents feel. He or she may be able to offer you help to start a family conversation that would make all of you feel better.

Your questions are legitimate and should be treated with respect. But remember also that you are who you are because your adopted parents are who they are also.

Dear Dr. Cotter:

I am a 15-year-old girl. The older I get the more this problem bothers me: How do I learn to love myself? I am not overly quiet or shy. Occasionally I feel insecure or even dissatisfied with myself and yet at other times I am glad to be me.

Answer: It is good to feel dissatisfied, even good somethimes to feel insecure. You are experiencing the fact that at your age you have many options in life, and you don't know which options are the best for you. However, you realize that the options you choose will in some measure tie you down and direct your future. It is a situation worth being scared of, but it is also a challenge, and such insecurity can be very creative for you.

But the experience will not be creative if, underneath all the options and decisions life is bringing to you, you are not mostly "glad to be me". Remember, we are supposed to love our neighbor as ourselves. We can't do much of a job of loving our neighbors in that way if we do not also love ourselves. You have a lot to give to the world around you — your talents, your thoghtfulness, your sensitive perceptions, and your love. So it is good you are you.

I give you two more suggestions: Remember that you have come into existence through love, and that the whole creation, the world around us which enabled you to be born and to be what you are, has existence through the love which made it.

Secondly, when you are feeling a bit down about yourself, find someone who needs your help — a friend in need or a sick person who needs a reader. There are thousand of opportunities; you will soon feel better about yourself.

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria V8W 2N4. Readers wishing to talk with someone about their problems can call NEED at 386-6233.

SUNNING SECRETARY Grace Gaudet enjoys a tanning session under the ultraviolet lights at Canada's first indoor tanning salon in Toronto this week. At $50 for 20 visits, a tan in the winter is a lot cheaper than heading south.

TORONTO (CP) — Sun worshippers won't get sand in their eyes but must be willing to stand naked 20 times for $50 in Canada's first indoor tanning centre.

The trend towards indoor tanning salons started a year ago in Searcy, Ark. The idea is that people can stand in shower-sized booths and expose themselves to ultraviolet light.

It moved to Memphis, Tenn., now known as the indoor suntan capital of North America.

Stan Seckenski, president of the Giant Cookie Co., which has 300 retail outlets across Metropolitan Toronto, got the idea of opening an indoor tanning centre in Toronto when he visited Memphis six months ago.

"I noticed half a dozen indoor tanning salons advertising in the Sunday paper," he said. "I checked it out and found that Memphis had 20 of them, all doing well.

"I figured such a salon would go over big in Toronto because it's certainly a lot cheaper and more convenient than stalking a temperamental sun."

Seckenski plans to open three more salons in Toronto within the next three months and 150 across Canada in a year on a franchise basis.

The tanning procedure takes several steps. First, a computer skin analysis is taken to collate such personal variables as skin type (dry or oily), tolerance, outdoor activity and complexion type (light or dark).

"If a redhead with blue eyes came in," said Seckenski, "I would discourage her because she wouldn't tan well and would be dissatisfied.

Clients are cautioned to wear goggles which they must buy for $3 each.

Also, there is no medical advisor connected with the salon, nor does the owner intend to hire one.

Customers with problem skins, said Seckenski, will be rejected and those who want to discontinue their visits will be given refunds.

Older women given wisdom

NEW YORK (AP) — A new program, Women In the Seventh Decade of Maturity, is being offered this fall by New York University's School of Continuing Education. The program, WISDOM, is designed to help older women meet the problems brought on by retirement, widowhood and other critical life changes, says its director, Rebecca Straus.

THE SOAPS: Just who is Alex Marshall?

By JOHN GOUDAS

Alex Marshall on Days of Our Lives? Who is he really when he's at home. Only hints have been tossed out on the soaper during the summer doldrums. Alex appears to be a tycoon with far-flung dealings. He goes over business and financial problems of the hospital with Tom Horton (Macdonald Carey), and appears to be in a position to dig up loot if needed.

On the romance side, Alex attracts Phyllis one week, hitting it off with Maggie the next. Both are vulnerable women, so Alex is in the driver's seat. The man also knows Stephanie's real identity — Bob Anderson's daughter — something no one else in Salem realizes.

Thus Alex Marshall becomes a man to measure. So far, he drops winning cards, a good guy, a fellow with resources who doesn't fluster. But his true mission on Days? No one knows yet.

Head-writer Elizabeth Harrower is bringing Alex along carefully, dropping tiny clues, refusing to tell all and spoil the guessing game. Alex is her creation, so he won't receive short shrift.

The Young and the Restless fans may be startled with Alex, since he is a familiar face. Actor Quinn Redecker worked The Young and the Restless from January to June, took a month off, then became Alex Marshall. The casting switch makes sense since Columbia Pictures owns both entries, and Elizabeth Harrower used to write Young and Restless shows before moving over as head writer on Days.

A strong performer, Redecker sports 125 TV credits and 15 feature films. You should know him immediately — a character actor from The Rock[illegible] Files, Starsky and Hutch, Barnaby Jones, and The Six Million Dollar Man.

Quinn, from Seattle, Wash., attended the University of Washington's fine drama school, considered by many to be the best in the West.

After a stint in the Air Force, Quinn chose Hollywood rather than New York, and says he's never regretted the move.

Quinn Redecker

Channel Chatter. Lloyd Battista, who plays Ray Slater on Love of Life and does those sexy wine commercials, will be starring in a new musical, King of Schnorrers. Battista is cast in a juicy role as a con-man king, in this musical about Sephardic Jews in 1791. The show opens Oct. 4 at the Harold Clurman Theater in New York.

Martha Lambert recently became a regular on As the World Turns, playing Sheila Winston. Previously Martha starred, wrote and co-produced Martha's Attic, a children's show on cable network HBO. On As the World Turns, Martha's Sheila worked as a caterer at Alex and Valerie's wedding, and proved right off-the-bat that she could not be trusted.

Jane White (Tante Helene on Search for Tomorrow) will be accepting the annual Freedom Award from the NAACP in Atlanta, Ga., on Sept. 28 . . .

Gary Giem (Dr. Paul Graham on Love of Life) was thrilled to get a fan letter from, would-you-believe, Siberia. It seems that a group of North Americans travelling in Russia really missed the show and were glad that Gary's Paul was back in Bambi's life.

Fans, be on the look-out for an upcoming edition of Dinah that will feature winners of the annual Soap Opera Digest Awards . . .

Plot Portents. Linda keeps messing up on Days of Our Lives. Not knowing Stephanie is Bob Anderson's real daughter, she continues to push the two together romantically, besides playing matchmaker between Mary and that no-good Stephen. As for Amanda and Chris, losing the child and the hysterectomy have only strengthened their bond.

Lorie battles with her sister Leslie on The Young and the Restless, unable to give up Lance without a struggle. Snapper and Brock keep an eye on teenagers Sharon and Julie, and Derek comforts a badly frightened Suzanne.

Alan goes to London to be with Hope on Guiding Light while Justin and Elizabeth marry. Ross makes an interesting discovery and Holly is in deep trouble.

No one bought trip to Tobolsk

By JOHN LEONARD

The children demanded to know what I had done with their tape recorder, the very same tape recorder they had taken with them into the garden the other night. The other night I was a victim of a "sleep-over" party. The sleepers-over decided to oversleep in the garden, on the sun deck, under the hovering mug. They refuse, of course, to go anywhere, even to the bathroom, without their music, and so they stuffed their music into the tape recorder, and at 2 o'clock in the morning, as I lay on my rack reviewing my many crimes against intelligence and decency, the garden was full of the sound of Mick Jagger, who is not my fault, although the neighbors who telephoned to animadvert seemed to think he was.

I explained to the children that their tape recorder had been exiled. Exile is not one of their categories. Where is it? I chuckled maniacally. Your tape recorder, my little rutabagas, has been sent to Tobolsk. What's a Tobolsk? A Tobolsk, my little Brussels sprouts, is a town in Siberia. They were not amused. Tough darts.

Let me back and fill. I had been reading Norman Mailer on Gary Gilmore in the October issue of Playboy, which arrived, mysteriously, at my house on the 26th of August. Flipping the pages of Playboy — I found the following "idol gossip" item in the "Coming Attractions" section:

"As predicted some months ago in this column, Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton will star together in 'Reds' for Paramount. The film is based on journalist John Reed's 'Ten Days That Shook the World,' a view of the Russian Revolution. Beatty will produce, direct and has co-authored the script with Trevor Griffiths. If the Russians don't permit filming in Moscow, Beatty's plan B is to shoot in Finland ...."

What will they think of next? How about a musical, based on the jeremiad of Oswald Spengler, called "How the West Was Lost," with Max Lerner as the White Liberal, Sonny Liston as the Goth, Elizabeth Taylor as Democracy, score by Lawrence Welk and Ravi Shankar, book by Herman Kahn, lyrics by Irving Kristol, featuring the bold choreography of the St. Vitus Jungenbundle Dervishes & Anti-Mime De Trop?

Anyway, by marriage, I relate more to Russia than to Cuba. If I were the Russians, I wouldn't let Warren Beatty film in Moscow, no sir, because the fact of the matter was that the Russian Revolution didn't happen in Moscow; it happened in Petrograd, a.k.a. St. Petersburg, now referred to as the grad of Lenin. Why don't they film in the hills outside of Ponce? On the other hand, I'd rather have Diane Keaton in my garden than Mick Jagger.

Sulking about the Russians led me to my punishment of the tape recorder. To the children, I pedagogged: Listen, my little artichokes, do you remember the three false Dmitris? Before Boris Godunov could take over as the Czar of all the Russias, he had to waste the little Czarevich Dmitri, son of the Czarina Maria Nagaya, who had been exiled to cosmopolitan Uglich. On May 15, 1591, Gudunov's assassins did in the little Dmitri and, as Fitzroy Maclean reports in "Holy Russia," the Bell of Uglich "of its own accord rang out to proclaim his murder.".

Boris was mad at the bell. He ordered the bell publicly flogged with a knout. He ordered the tongue of the bell to be torn out. And then he sent the bell into exile, to Tobolsk in Siberia. The bell stayed there for three centuries. George Kennan — not Cour George Kennan, but an earlier one — reports having inspected the bell in 1879. "(It) has been purged of its iniquity, has received ecclesiastical consecration, and now calls the orthodox people of Tobolsk to prayers. The inhabitants of Uglich have recently been trying to recover their bell upon the plea that it has been sufficiently punished by three centuries of exile for its political untrustworthiness ... The mayor of Tobolsk, however, argues that the bell was exiled for life, and that, consequently, its term of banishment has not yet expired."

The bell went back to Uglich in 1892. I have no information on its tongue. In the meantime, at least three Dmitris advanced themselves as not having really been wasted after all. Only the King of Poland believed them. Certainly my children, my little lima beans, didn't believe me. "False Dmitri!" they harrumphed, and looked for their tape recorder in the fireplace, in the medicine cabinet, under my typewriter.

Two days of whining followed. Then a friend of mine, rented for the weekend, went recklessly into the kitchen to fetch himself a beer. He returned pale with excitement. "Are you aware," he gasped, "that you have a singing cauliflower in your ice-box?"

The children stampeded to the refrigerator. To be sure, the cauliflower was making a lot of noise. I hadn't torn out its tongue. The children no longer speak to me.

To my friend, I said: "They never would have found it. Not in three centuries would they have opened, of their own accord, the vegetable drawer in my ice-box." Just wait till they get to the ice cubes; Omar Sharif has a tray of his own.

Pills puff pumpkin

DEAL, England (UPI) — It's too late for this Halloween, but a disabled Second World War veteran may have found a way to grow the Great Pumpkin for next year — with fertility pills and transistor radios.

Steven Hobday, 59, says he found a bottle of fertility pills in a garbage dump near his home and decided, on a whim, to put a pill into the soil of his garden every three days.

When the garden started to bloom, Hobday said he put a transistor radio in the yard for the plants and occasionally stuck the radio's earpiece into one of his pumpkins.

All that loving care produced a pumpkin that grew to 76 pounds, 4 feet in diameter, Hobday said during the weekend.

with May MacLean

Now that the summer holidays are behind us and the children have returned to school, many of you will begin thinking of serious knitting or crochet projects.

Both mitts and gloves will be needed by various members of your family and I have an excellent leaflet for knitted gloves giving all sizes from children's to men's on Leaflet No. 1077. Knitted mitt instructions again for chilren's to men's are on Leaflet No. 1178.

For the very young, the toddlers, there are crocheted mitts and toque on Leaflet No. 0876, while bonnet, bootees and mitts for a young lady of 12 to 18 months while riding in a push-chair on a chilly day, the directions are on Leaflet No. 0976, this is a knitted set.

Knitted hats and toques are always needed once the mornings begin to get chilly and there is a variety of these on my leaflet No. 6830, and the knitted caps and hoods which are more for the ladies and girls are on Leaflet No. 6814. Kitted toques for all sizes and styles are featured on Leaflet No. 1270.

I expect that many of you have begun to notice that even knitting and crochet instructions now are metric. I must confess while working on projects thro' the summer in metric, I was ready to throw up my hands, but after you get into it, I found it quite easy. Confusion will be with the change over.

I found it helpful to calculate one inch as 2.50 cm, it's actually 2.54 cm, but 2.50 cm is near enough when you are converting. The same with 12 inches which can be translated into metric as 30 cm. And 3½ ounches of handknitting wool is near enough equivalent to 100 grams.

Quite a number of readers have asked for the crochet cap pattern with a peak. It's featured this week for both men and women and it can also be made as a beret. This is a useful pattern leaflet as directions are also given for crochet scarves, vests and skirts. All directions are on the one leaflet.

To order this week's pattern No. 7016 or any other leaflet I have mentioned, send 75 cents for each leaflet, PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. MacLean, "KNIT & CHAT" care of Victoria Times, 486 Montford Dr., Dollard Des Ormeau, Roxboro, Que., H9G 1M6.

If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped envelope for faster service. Allow two weeks for normal delivery. All back numbers of my series are available at 75 cents each; catalogue of Gift and Bazaar Items, 25 cents. All orders much be accompanied with a stamped return envelope, or an extra 25 cents.

for consumers

You've just had a lovely dinner for two. The bill came to $40. And for more than an hour of courteous, attentive service, you feel the waiter deserves a 15 per cent gratuity. So you add the tip to the credit card slip, and smile as you leave. The waiter is $6 richer, right? Wrong.

In most Canadian restaurants, today, that waiter would get only part of that tip, perhaps as little as half.

So where does the money go? It's customary to share 15 per cent with the busboy, and few waiters and waitresses complain about that. About $5 a week goes to the bartender, and then, perhaps something for the kitchen waiter. As much as 20 per cent might be split with the matire d'.

According to Wendy Iler, of the Canadian Food and Associated Services Union, that's going too far. "It's one thing to share the tip with people who helped in serving," she says, "but why should the waitress subsidize management.?"

"That doesn't happen in my restaurant,' said Alex Manikas, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association. "Management doesn't get involved at all. If the (waiters) want to split their tips with bartenders and busboys, that's their business.'"

It is true that in many restaurants tips are split informally. Other personnel do, after all, contribute to the diner's enjoyment. But surely this hidden subsidy for labor costs would be more fairly presented in the price of the meal as listed in the menu.

As a rule, service personnel in Canadian restaurants are paid minimum wage. In Ontario and Quebec, those employed in licensed establishments are paid even less due to special exemptions in the labor laws. These exemptions are said to take into account the extra income from tips.

Tipping began as a method of insuring and rewarding prompt service. But today it is expected that the diner will tip unless he found the service unsatisfactory. The usual is 10 per cent at luch, 15 per cent at dinner.

For some waiters, that means as much as $400 a week. For others, in small corner diners, it's as little as $40.

Should a customer walk out without paying it is often the waiter who is out of pocket, wiping out the day's tips.

Credit cards have changed the tipping scene considerably. Many restaurants deduct about 4 per cent from a tip that is charged to a credit card. They claim that the credit company charges them this amount, and it is only fair that the waiter should pay his 4 per cent. That may sound reasonable, but did the diner know that? Maybe he would have left the tip in cash.

In the long run, it might be nice to do away with tips altogether, and pay appropriate wages for the skills involved in giving good service. Only outstanding service would prompt a reward.

Or maybe a compromise could be reached. The service charge could be automatically added to the check. The customer would know in advance that the charge for service would be a stated percentage. If he wasn't satisfied with the service, he could explain the problem to the manager, and refuse to pay the service charge. At least the waiter wouln't suffer for a diner's dissatisfaction with the food, or decor.

If you want to avoid tipping altogether, you can tavel to China, or Norway, or a few other places in the world where tipping is not the custom. In many European countries, the service charge is added to the bill, or already included in the price of the food. In Japan, tipping is frowned upon.

But don't go to Italy, France or Argentina, where 18 per cent to 25 per cent is expected.

In Canada, you have to stick to the fast food restaurants, where tipping isn't customary. Then, neither is table service. A few fast-food chains are offering table service and continue to prohibit tipping. One must wonder if they pay a higher wage.

Tipping has been going on for centuries, and it is not likely to disappear overnight. But the customer has a right to know what he's paying for when he leaves a gratuity.

Many today are covered by group insurance plans. They have become part of a group insurance program through their employer, their union, or their membership in an association.

Group insurance is divided into three separate elements: health insurance, life insurance, and disability insurance. In the event that the policy holder passes away, group life insurance provides his family with a lump sum of money or a regular income. Group health plans offer protection against medical expenses which are not covered by government programmes.

Despite the fact that carpets have been in use for thousands of years, it wasn't until the nineteenth century that mechanized methods of carpet production volved.

Today, a further increase in mechanization, combined with the use of new fibres and dyes, makes it possible to produce a 12 by 15-foot rug in four minutes. Though carpets can now be maufactured quickly and efficiently, they still qualify as a moderately large investment for most people.

Rug and carpet care is a 30-page book that was written to assist the consumer in maintaining the beauty of his carpet. You can receive a free copy of this book from: Consumer Services Center, S.C. Johnson and Son, Brantford, Ontario, N3T 5R1. This publication is fully bilingual.

Czech hero Svoboda dies of heart attack

PRAGUE (UPI) — Former President Ludvik Svoboda, a wartime hero and a central figure in the "Prague Spring" liberalization crushed by the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, died Thursday after suffering a heart attack. He was 83.

A dashing general who helped to liberate Czechoslovakia from the Nazis, Svoboda was elected president on March 30, 1968 — only five months before Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces invaded and crushed the "Prague Spring" liberalization efforts of Communist Party Secretary Alexander Dubcek.

With Dubcek and other liberal reformers under arrest, Svoboda was ordered to ratify the new Soviet-installed government. He refused and flew to Moscow to demand Dubcek's release.

SVOBODA

One story, widely believed in Czechoslovakia, was that the popular Svoboda threatened to kill himself if Dubcek and the other "Prague Spring" reformers were not set free.

The Soviets relented and agreed to release Dubcek and allow him to proceed with parts of his program of "Socialism with a Human Face." But six months later Dubcek was forced to resign.

Although his health was shattered by the traumatic events of August 1968, Svoboda stayed on under Dubcek's successor, Gustav Husak. His authority steadily declined.

He was elected to a second five-year term in 1973 only because Husak and his colleagues could not agree on a successor. He resigned in May, 1975, because of ill health and was succeeded by Husak.

A silver-haired general who helped free Czechoslovakia from Nazi occupation in World War II, Svoboda was born on Nov. 28, 1895, the son of a Moravian farmer.

He led the Czechoslovak unit of the Russian Red army that defeated the Nazis at Dukla Pass in 1944 and served as Defense Minister in the post-war period — one of only two non-Communists in the cabinet.

East German snorkels to freedom

BERLIN (UPI) — An East German equipped with a snorkel-type device swam a border lake early today under cover of darkness to the American sector of Berlin, West Berlin police reported.

To escape detection the refugee used a breathing tube extending above the surface of the water so he could swim submerged, police said.

To get to the lake between East Germany and the American sector the refugee had to get through barbed wire barriers patrolled by Eastern border guards.

'Beyond imagination' Cambodia famine fear

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department officials say a famine "terrible beyond imagination" seems likely to develop in war-torn Cambodia.

And they say the outlook for a political accommodation opening Cambodia to major food shipments from the United States and elsewhere is "bleak."

The Vietnamese-supported government of Heng Samrin has thus far refused to agree on a program of international controls with agencies like the International Red Cross or UNICEF.

Without controls, the United States is unlikely to contribute food.

In a related development, Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan of Thailand said Thursday he will allow his country to be a "staging area" for humanitarian aid to neighboring Cambodia.

KRIANGSAK

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press in Bangkok, Kriangsak said failure of the international community to come to the aid of the Cambodian people would be "cold-blooded murder."

But he said he would withdraw his support for such aid if it was shown any of the relief was going to warring factions.

Without food aid, the population of Cambodia is likely to suffer massive starvation and those who can flee will swell the number of refugees crowded into Southeast Asian camps, the officials believe.

Reports reaching Washington say the situation is already desperate.

No food is in the markets and millions are subsisting on rice gruel and tubers. "The population is traumatized and dying," one official said.

The Cambodian government of Heng Samrin, in asking for 100,000 tons of food from the World Food Program in Rome, said it has to feed 2.2 million people. Other Cambodians are in areas still controlled by Pol Pot.

But the Cambodian government has thus far refused to go along with international agencies which say they must be able to inspect food distribution programs to make sure it is distributed fairly, on a non-political basis and is used to feed civilians, not the army.

The state department officials speculate that the government intends to launch a new offensive against the Pol Pot forces shortly and does not want international observers in the country.

They said their hands are tied, because U.S. law requires international controls before food aid can be sent.

As a result, only a few planeloads of food from the United States have gone to Cambodia. The major government effort so far has been directed to Thailand, where Cambodian refugees are crossing the border in search of food.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE IS $300
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE ON PAGE 2.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week! THIS CROSSWORD is not a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a work list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully.

2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

CLUES ACROSS

1. SPACE not spice. Misuse of spice can well spoil the food; it isn't merely a matter of the spice itself seeming to be rather wasted.
9. RUSH not rash. Such tardiness can positively lead to RUSH measures, but there is never any call for them to be rash ones.
11. FEAR not year. FEAR definitely means lack of confidence; but in the case of year, one may still be optimistic about the future.
13. VIM not aim. It is difficult to see how one can take action without any real aim, or idea of what one is trying to do. VIM, therefore, is the more applicable answer.
16. REST not zest. "A reasonable amount" is an adjudged suitable quantity, as of REST. Zest is a spontaneous thing hardly evaluated in the measured way suggested. Jest is not particularly apt.
19. HULK not hull. "HULK," an old or dismantled ship, is more the sort of word used in the context of the clue.
21. GRATEFUL not graceful. Since dancing is a helpful acquisition, GRATEFUL is quite apt in relation to a "stage-struck" girl. Dancing lessons are not necessarily likely to make a girl graceful in her ordinary deportment.
23. PRIZE not price. There is certainly no harm in offering the best possible PRIZE, but to offer an excessive price may not be very sensible.
24. TUSKS not tasks. Exceptionally long TUSKS are remarkable or interesting as suggested by the clue's phrase: "of note." Their merely being extra long does nothing in itself to make tasks less mundane or more noteworthy.

CLUES DOWN:

2. PAINTER not painted. "Self-portrait" links up especially with PAINTER. The subject of any portrait, or other picture in oils, is painted.
3. CONCERN not concert. A really big concert is news of a kind; it doesn't actually do anything positive to "make" news — as a big CONCERN can do by taking certain measures, etc.
5. START not stars. The idea of a number of stars being held up (where and how?) by bad organization (whose) is somewhat vague and unsatisfactory. One can readily visualize the START of the show being delayed due to disorganization in the theatre.
6. DRESSING not pressing. To press it could well cause great pain, not mere discomfort.
10. GONE not done. The toast will be no quicker done because you are "hungry."
12. CAT not bat or rat. The clue reflects a possible concern for the survival of the animal, that its death should be viewed philosophically. In this way, a CAT, as a pet, is most convincingly apt.
14. CHAP not chop. "Unfortunately," in the clue, strikes a certain note of sympathy, as for the misfortune of a CHAP who gets a nasty cut. If a chop is badly cut, it is due to carelessness or incompetence.
15. PLAID not plain. A PLAID skirt may be rather noticeable, or even mildly remarkable, but indeed "not startlingly unusual." A plain skirt is not in any sense unusual.

Coup fells African emperor

PARIS (AP) — Former president David Dacko has overthrown Emperor Bokassa in a bloodless coup and declared the Central African Empire a republic.

The successful coup follows 14 years of dictatorship which saw the mass murder of schoolchildren and a coronation which cost one quarter of the impoverished country's annual income.

Sources said there were no casualties in the coup late Thursday but there were reports of looting at stores owned by Bokassa's relatives in the capital city of Bangui.

A dawn-to-dusk curfew was imposed and the state radio appealed to all medical personnel to go to Bangui's University Hospital "extremely urgently."

France, the former colonial ruler of the African country, hailed the coup as "an extremely happy event."

France said a contingent of its troops arrived in Bangui today to help maintain order. It said the troops were sent at Dacko's request and will remain until "the Central African authorities judge the safety of the population is assured."

Bokassa is the third African dictator overthrown in five months following the fall of Uganda's Idi Amin and Francisco Macias Nguema of Equatorial Guinea.

Sources said that the stocky, bearded 58-year-old Bokassa was in Libya when the coup was staged.

Dacko was overthrown by Bokassa on Dec. 31, 1965 and held under house arrest until three years ago when he was freed by the emperor and named as his personal adviser.

'NAPOLEON' BOKASSA
. . . 100 children slain

During his presidency, Dacko took a number of austerity measures to revitalize the economy that angered the population and fuelled the 1965 coup led by Bokassa, then head of the army.

Bokassa, a former French colonial army sergeant, proclaimed himself emperor in December 1976 and changed the name of the country from the Central African Republic to the Central African Empire.

A year later, on Dec. 3, 1977, the dictator of one of the world's poorest countries crowned himself in a colorful $30-million ceremony inspired by his idol, Napoleon Bonaparte.

Carter approves security umbrella for potential rival

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy, facing increased threats to his life since announcing he might challenge President Carter, is under Secret Service protection ordered by the president.

Neither White House aides nor Kennedy's staff would discuss the question of threats but it was learned that the number has increased sharply since Kennedy disclosed he is considering running for president in 1980.

Dispatched by Carter, several agents appeared at Kennedy's office on the second floor of the Senate office building late Thursday afternoon.

Carter ordered the protection after receiving what the White House described as a Secret Service analysis of the senator's safety.

"I have accepted President Carter's generous offer of Secret Service protection and my family and I deeply appreciate his action on this matter," Kennedy said in a statement issued by his office.

A Kennedy spokesman acknowledged that the Massachusetts senator regularly receives threats and that an average of one a week is considered serious enough to be referred to authorities.

Pork power plugs Miss Piggy for Oscar

CINCINNATI (UPI) — About 25,000 letters have poured in so far in what has turned out to be an astounding, and apparently serious, campaign to have a puppet voted an Oscar as America's best actress.

"A lot of the letters are filled with cynicism about some of the actors and actresses who are nominated for Oscars," says Bruce E. Collin, who is spearheading a campaign on behalf of the Muppets' Miss Piggy.

"There are thousands of people in this country who believe Miss Piggy is more deserving of an Oscar than a lot of actresses."

Earlier this year, Collin, 23, and James C. Hall, 46, both executives at a large corportation headquartered in Cincinnati, organized a Committee to Award Miss Piggy the Oscar (CAMPO) for her role in The Muppet Movie and rented a postal box (CAMPO, P.O. Box 3311, Cincinnati, Ohio) to receive letters of support from Miss Piggy fans.

With the total now around 25,000, and increasing every day, Collin and Hall are running out of places to store the letters. But, they're saving every one.

DR. BUNDOLO'S PANDEMONIUM MEDICINE SHOW
September 29, 8:00 p.m.
University Centre Auditorium

The incorrigible comedic team can be counted upon to contribute ninety minutes of questionable material that is guaranteed to keep you rolling in the aisles or begging for mercy. The good doctor wishes it known that contrary to popular belief he is not anti-establishment, just anti-boredom.

TICKETS $3.00 ea

Tickets for all evening performances will go on sale at the McPherson Playhouse Box office and outlets including the Campus Box Office. For more information on these and other concerts please contact the McPherson Playhouse Box Office at 386-6121.

Church $ for guerrillas

Times News Services

GENEVA — The World Council of Churches (WCC) said today it is donating about $34,600 to the Patriotic Front guerrilla delegation at the Rhodesian independence conference in London to offset its costs there.

Moreover, no ceiling on these costs was in sight as the conference was reported still well short of agreement, and likely to drag on at an estimated cost of $350,000 a week to British taxpayers.

Although the British government met the costs of all three official delegations at the conference, each group was responsible for paying for its own technical staff. The WCC said this presented particular difficulties for the Patriotic Front as the only non-governmental delegation.

Meanwhile, the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian delegation lodged an official complaint, claiming the Patriotic Front was using its British expense money to buy arms.

Guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe's delegation, some clad in camouflage battle shirts, moved this week from their rooms in a five-star hotel overlooking Kensington Palace into less expensive self-service apartments.

Zimbabwe-Rhodesian Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's biracial delegation, still comfortably ensconced in a hotel in London's Knightsbridge district, made an immediate formal protest to the foreign office.

Previous so-called anti-racism grants by the WCC to the Patriotic Front aroused controversy within the council which links 295 churches around the world of the Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and old Catholic faiths.

Britain is paying the basic hotel room charges for 20 Muzorewa delegates and 20 from the joint Patriotic Front delegation led by Mozambique-based Mugabe and Zambia-based Joshua Nkomo, plus a daily $70 food allowance for each of the 40.

The guerrillas and Muzorewa's administration, who have each brought more than 50 persons, have to pay the rest of the bill themselves.

Initial U.S. diagnosis gives DC-9s clean bill

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) says a preliminary investigation indicates there are no major problems with the DC-9 jetliner.

The FAA ordered checks on all U.S. operated DC-9s after an Air Canada DC-9 lost its tail cone and rear door Monday, shortly after takeoff from Boston.

FAA computer records made public Thursday revealed that 1,758 cracks or defects have been found in DC-9 fuselages in the last five years, including bulkhead cracks similar to the one that caused Monday's Air Canada DC-9 mishap.

Authorities at the FAA national records centre say they suspect the age of DC-9 aircraft and the fact that they make more frequent landings than other types of airliners account for the disproportionate number of body cracks.

Air Canada today lifted ceiling restrictions on its DC-9s and declared the planes airworthy. But three DC-9s in its fleet won't be flying some time pending repairs.

Six more are undergoing minor repairs on non-stress areas, and will be released for service today, airline officials told a news conference held at company's maintenance base in west-end Dorval Thursday evening.

A dozen Air Canada flights have been cancelled today, Saturday and Sunday, while another 12 to 15 are running late as the airline shuffles passengers onto other aircraft.

The Boston incident and the FAA order prompted a number of airlines around the world to check their DC-9s.

The FAA says there are about 100 DC-9s of similar specification in the United States to the Air Canada aircraft involved in the Boston mishap.

McDonnell Douglas Corp., manufacturer of the aircraft, has set up a team to determine how the tail cone came off the plane.

But a company spokesman told a news conference in Long Beach, Calif., that all airliners have harmless cracks.

Today's Markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was up sharply in active mid-session trading today.

Trading in shares of Pennant Resources Ltd., which was halted late Thursday pending an announcement, resumed at the opening and last traded at $1.81.

The company said it was shocked at a temporary cease-trading order issued by the Ontario Securities Commission on Thursday. It said the order prohibits certain individuals from trading in Pennant's 10-per-cent convertible sinking fund debentures but does not affect trading in Pennant shares.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading in shares of Asbestos Corp. was halted late Thursday pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $44.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau was expected to make an announcement about the company Friday. The province has said it intends to acquire the 55-per-cent interest in Asbestos owned by General Dynamics Corp. and to make a bid for all other shares.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Of shares traded, 127 advanced, 145 declined and 132 were unchanged.

In the industrials, B.C. Resources Investment Corp. was down .10 at $7.90 on 204,145 shares and Grouse Mountain was down .01 at .70 on 5,000. Great National Land was up .05 at $1.45 on 3,700 shares and Okanagan Helicopter was unchanged at $16¼ on 3,400. Saratoga Processing was unchanged at $7½ and Taro Industries was up .05 at $3.45.

New York

The market began rising sharply late Thursday as rumors circulated about an oil find at an exploratory well off the Newfoundland coast.

Standard Oil of California's Chevron Standard subsidiary confirmed a discovery Friday. But Leo Barry, Newfoundland's mines and energy minister, said tests at the well showed a flow of oil considerably less than would be needed for commercial production.

Chevron said it would drill deeper for further tests.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 460.3, up 2.2.

TOWN TALK

Those folks out in Metchosin have seen some strange things so it's not likely they'll be too upset by an egg-beater style experimental windmill to be erected near Rocky Point.

The provincial ministry of energy, along with B.C. Hydro and the National Research Council, plans to put up the wind generator on national defence department land as a demonstration project to check the feasibility of wind-generated power on the west coast.

The whole whirly-gig affair is hush-hush at this point, but Town Talk has confirmed a $150,000 generator capable of producing 60 kilowatts of power — or enough to supply the normal electrical needs of a dozen homes — will be spinning away by next spring.

He has just received a parcel from his son in Cranbrook. No, the parcel wasn't damaged beyond recognition but how does the post office explain the fact it came here via Seattle and Vancouver customs. The trip took 12 days. The stamps on the wrapper tell the story.

Has Vancouver Island suddenly become a foreign country?

The only explanation a post-office spokesman here could give was that the parcel could have been inadvertently chucked into the U.S. bag at Cranbrook.

It was a day of reckoning for those ministerial bodyguards, that bunch of information-dispensing flacks who divert the press from its appointed task of skewering cabinet ministers with brilliant, incisive questions.

It was the annual press versus cabinet ministers' executive assistants softball game Wednesday evening (to be known forever after as Wipeout Wednesday) in Beacon Hill Park.

It was a mercifully short affair with the press, like the Expos who played a somewhat less significant double-header the same night, emerging victorious, continuing their supremacy over the EAs as they're called around the Legislative Buildings.

A late-inning rally by the EAs was far too little, too late as they came up on the low end of the 24-18.

CURTIS
... limps east

If there's one thing Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis won't do in future, it's try to go down the basement stairs in his home in the dark.

The minister took a tumble on the eve of a trip to New Brunswick and ended up with an ankle that was decidedly ouch.

Curtis consulted a doctor, was informed he had a severe sprain but was told, in effect, "walk it off".

He did — to the extent of tottering up and down the aisle of the plane which took him back east — but in Toronto, ouch became agony and Curtis went to a doctor there.

Some day computers may take over the world and the thought is downright frightening to Ronald Woolcock, 3501 Savannah.

He got only three letters on Wednesday morning, all from ICBC, and all telling a different story.

One said that because of penalty points he owed $144. The second said he owed $306. A third said he was entitled to a safe driving vehicle discount of $70.

"I don't think all three of them are right," Woolcock said.

Probably not, especially since the computer even had trouble with his name. Incredibly, his insurance renewal form, although sent to the right address, called him Ronald Woodcock.

In Vancouver, ICBC was a little bewildered by it all.

"It's a pretty complicated case and we're still trying to sort it out," an official said.

Lydia Kasianchuk will produce new Heritage series

Voices of all nations

By JANE COVERNTON

Victoria's first multi-cultural radio show — called Heritage — starts this Sunday at 10 a.m. on CFMS-FM.

The 13-week series opens with a Chinese program and ends with an all-nations Christmas program.

The shows will be in English, with music and short histories of how each group came to Victoria.

Producer Lydia Kasianchuk persuaded CFMS (98.5) to run the series on an experimental basis after phone calls and letters poured in about the Ukrainian Christmas show she did last year.

She got the idea of doing multi-cultural programming when she worked on human rights with the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria and realized how many groups there are in Victoria and how little the public seems to know about them.

"The cultural heritage of each group is part of the heritage of all of Canada and it's interesting to know about that," says Kasianchuk.

She's learned new things since she started working on the series.

For example: there are more than 100 families in the Victoria Black People's Society and as recently as the early part of this century, Chinese children were not allowed to go to public school.

"There are so many interesting people here, such a richness of various cultures. Most people don't have access to that."

Kasianchuk has been working with the cultural associations and they decided on the series focus.

The Canadian Hungarian Society, for example, will focus on how many of their people came to Canada in 1958 after the Soviet Union invaded Hungary.

She says if the program continues past the 13 weeks, they'll have a chance to go into things in more depth.

Kasianchuk suggests an hour might be devoted to black jazz or a whole series on Ukrainian opera.

Kasianchuk has taught high school, edited the Canadian Slavonic Papers and once, she says with a smile, was assistant producer of the Howdy-Doody Show.

But her interest in multi-cultural broadcasting probably goes back to when she was three and made her show business debut on her father's Ukrainian show in Edmonton.

Her father started the first ethnic radio program in that city in 1938. He had to arrange music, sing, and conduct the orchestra for 117 live broadcasts.

She should have a slightly easier time of it. But it's a lot of work and she's doing it for what amounts to an honorarium.

She says CFMS program manager Murray Cownden has given her lots of support, offering to run the program even if sponsors can't be found.

Hudsons never received offer of $200,000

An article in the Times on Sept. 5 quoted A.B. Kool, who is involved in assembly of land for the projected Royal Oak industrial park, as saying that Mrs. Joan Hudson of 701 Vanalman had been offered and refused a price in excess of $200,000 for her home.

Mrs. Hudson has told the Times that neither she nor any member of the family has ever received an offer for her property.

And Kool has written to the Times to say: "I must sincerely apologize for that statement, for it turned out to be untrue. I therefore take full responsibility for the erroneous article . . ."

The Victoria Times also apologizes to Mrs. Hudson and sincerely regrets any inconvenience the article may have caused her.

Moonies back seeking funds

The Moonies are back in town going door to door and asking for donations, Ald. Robin Blencoe said today.

The young, clean-cut members of the Korean Unification church run by the highly controversial Rev. Sun Myung Moon have already canvassed parts of James Bay, saying they are asking for money for "youth work," he said.

A spokesman for the Victoria Better Business Bureau said they have had several inquiries already about the Moonies and their fund raising.

She said they do not meet BBB standards because they have refused in the past to tell the local office and Better Business Bureaus across the country what they do with the money.

Solar heated crystal?

The Crystal Pool could be warmed by a solar heating system that would pay for itself in little more than three years and save the city at least $9,000 annually in oil bills after that, city council was told Thursday.

A B.C. Hydro assessment of the pool said an unglazed solar heating plant could be built at the pool for about $70,000. The city is eligible for a 50 per cent grant from the province to help pay capital costs, according to city engineer John Sansom.

Hydro engineer Stuart Leslie gave a preliminary estimate of a saving of 17,500 gallons of fuel oil a year. Assuming a price of 50 cents a gallon, he said the saving just the first year would be $8,750.

Ald. Robin Blencoe was asked by his colleagues as chairman of council's recreational facilities committee to draw up a proposal that could be included in the 1980 budget.

Provincial probe asked by Blair on Jubilee woes

Ald. Colin Blair of Esquimalt has asked Health Minister Bob McClelland to order a full inquiry into the the Royal Jubilee Hospital controversy.

Blair said today the situation is much too serious to be solved at the municipal level and an inquiry must be held to set the public at rest.

On Wednesday, the medical staff at the hospital demanded Terry Prentice resign as chairman of the board because they have lost confidence in him.

Prentice was appointed to the board by Esquimalt.

Ald. Larry Mann said Thursday he will propose a motion of confidence in Prentice at the next Esquimalt council meeting.

Blair's letter to McClelland said in the last few months there have been serious charges in the press about operations at RJH.

He mentioned suggestions that unnecessary operations are being performed and that the solution is for less people to get sick.

Blair also mentioned reports the hospital has been unable to get nurses while there are simaltaneous suggestions nurses are unable to get jobs, reports that there are long waiting lists and that some wards are being closed, that people waiting for surgery are finding it postponed the day before.

He referred to reports that Victoria council appointees refused to appear before council.

"This raises the suggestion that appointees are not accountable to the people who appointed them."

Blair said it would not be useful to have Prentice appear before Esquimalt council.

"It's now beyond the power of Esquimalt council to solve these problems. The only way is a full inquiry. I don't think I have sufficient information to support or condemn a motion of confidence in Prentice," said Blair.

Blair would not go along with Mann's assertion that doctors are responsible for budget problems at RJH.

"I find it hard to believe that 120 doctors can be wrong," he said.

Mann said he will not support a motion asking McClellend for an inquiry.

"I think the hospital board is capable of looking after the operations of the hospital. I don't think an inquiry is necessary at this time."

Meanwhile, Dr. Scott Wallace today accused Mann of carrying out a hit-and-run assault on the medical profession.

He said Mann first said doctors are responsible for most of the health costs at hospitals and then, when challenged to prove it with details, said he could make no further statement because he is a provincial government employee in the ministry of health.

"Mann might have considered that fact before making the statement but, having made it, he should publicly defend it now that he has been challenged."

Mann is employed in management services under Health Minister McClelland.

Wallace said Mann must be publicly called to account for his statement.

Wallace said medical costs are the result of improved technology, which, while much more efficent, are very expensive.

"When a patient walks into my office I want to give him the best type of care available. It is because of this improved technology that costs are going up.

"The only way to control costs is to have the minister say he is content to give people second-class care. I don't think anyone wants that."

It is expensive to administer diagnostic tests and sometimes it takes several to find the answer, Wallace said.

"Sometimes it takes as many as five tests to find the answer. It is expensive but maybe the fifth test will save a life. I'm not content to offer second-class care."

Glazier sees Cityplan as 80s key

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Ald. Murray Glazier officially opened his mayoralty campaign today with a promise to set up a citizens' task force called Cityplan to draft a plan for Victoria in the 1980s.

"I've been troubled and concerned that as a council we've been unable to solve a number of issues large and small," Glazier told a press conference.

If elected, his first act will be to call together representatives of different groups in the city — as many as 100 people from business, labor, senior citizens, community associations — and ask them to determine what the public wants.

"It's your city. Let's plan it together. Let's have a partnership of city hall and the citizens of Victoria."

The Cityplan task force would examine such issues as population and jobs, services for the elderly, whether there should be an additional major park in Victoria, neighborhood development, transportation, recreation, health care and hospitals and policing, Glazier said.

The alderman, who is chairman of the city's finance committee and also chairman of the Capital Regional District, said Cityplan doesn't mean that politicians who are elected to lead and make decisions on controversial issues would be passing the buck.

"I don't see it that way. Until recently people have been content to leave decisions to council. I perceive that things have changed. Things move too fast now. The public should be involved continually."

The task force would consult the public through community meetings and opinion polls, he added.

Residents might be asked to fill in questionnaires asking their opinion, for example, on street hawkers and spraying 2,4-D in the parks and larger issues like Inner Harbor development.

"Leadership is fine," said Glazier, "but you ought to lead in the direction your constituents want to go."

He said he shares the concerns of many Victorians over the present state of affairs.

"Many of our elderly people are feeling the hurt of inflation and little of the benefits. Our hospital care situation is precarious and many find property tax a worry," he said.

Guardian appointed for unborn child

HALIFAX (CP) — A decision by a Nova Scotia family court to grant an unborn child a guardian could be a precedent-setting case in Canada, Arthur Foote, an expert in family law at Dalhousie University Law School, said Thursday.

The case involves a 19-year-old woman who was refused an abortion at a local hospital because her estranged husband threatened to seek an injunction to prevent the operation.

In addition, a member of the Nova Scotians United for Life, an anti-abortion group, received permission from the court to become the guardian for the unborn child. The group claimed the life of the child was endangered.

"It is the first case I know of within the Anglo-Commonwealth system where a child not yet born has had a guardian appointed on its behalf," Foote said in an interview. "The traditional approach is that a child has to be born before you can have any particular proceedings in relation to the child.

"A guardian is someone who is suppose to make all significant decisions about the child. If the guardian thinks the mother's lifestyle is detrimental to the health of the baby to be born, can the mother be put on a special diet?

"Given the traditional obligations of a guardian of a child, how does this guardian actually operate? It cannot bypass the mother."

Foote said he believes the Nova Scotia court went beyond its jurisdiction in appointing the guardian.

A family court has only such jurisdiction as conferred on it by legislation, he said. So unless you can find the authority in the legislation, you cannot do it.

A similiar request in Ontario was refused about two weeks ago by the Ontario Supreme Court, Foote said.

Foote said it it high time that law reform commissions study this kind of problem and decide how to deal with it.

Clark to name Jerome speaker

Times News Service

OTTAWA — James Jerome will be called on to serve as speaker of the house of Commons in the 31st parliament, informed sources said Thursday.

Prior to departing as the head of a parliamentary delegation to China, Jerome was sounded out as to his availability for the post.

He apparently indicated his readiness to serve again and his name will be placed before the Commons by Prime Minister Clark. He is due back this weekend from China.

He was elected speaker of the house at the start of the 30th parliament in September, 1974. He served the house with an impartiality that gained the grudging admiration of the Conservatives and other members on the opposition side while Liberals on the government side sometimes quarrelled with his rulings.

Numbers played a key role in the decision to approach him with the offer to serve again as speaker of the house. With the death of John Diefenbaker the number of Progressive Conservative supporters has been reduced to 135 in the Commons. There are 113 Liberals, 26 New Democratic Party members and six Social Credit. There are two vacancies.

Leading a minority government in the house Clark was naturally reluctant to name a Progressive Conservative to the position of speaker as that would reduce the number of his supporters.

Ontario allows bilingual trials

TORONTO (CP) — In what an Ontario cabinet minister called one of the most significant developments in the province's administration of justice, the government has given persons charged with a criminal offence the right to trial by a bilingual judge or jury.

Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said courts will be allowed to transfer criminal cases after Dec. 31 to areas where bilingual jurors are available. The French-language service follows Criminal Code changes passed last year in Ottawa.

Ontario's health-care system also is going bilingual. Health Minister Dennis Timbrell announced Thursday in Sudbury that the Ontario government has identified areas where bilingual services in health care will have priority because of the large numbers of French-speaking residents.

Neither McMurtry nor Timbrell could say how much the bilingual policies will cost, but Timbrell said funds will be availables for hospitals to improve French-language services.

Criminal Code amendments will permit witnesses to testify in either language before a bilingual judge or jury. And translating facilities will be available if the accused is not bilingual.

Ontario will join New Brunswick as the only other province where these rights have been adopted. And in New Brunswick, the only province to proclaim itself bilingual, people already had the right to be tried in either official language.

In Quebec, English-speaking residents have had trials in English since Confederation, but that province has not yet adopted the Criminal Code amendments.
